Polo Today.
Sir Frederick Pollock.
Two Fighting Ladies.
We Amuse Coste.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

TODAY. BRITISH and American polo teams play in Long Island. It will be a violent game, serious accidents are to be feared, judging by the mood of the players.

THE BRITISH have one particularly brilliant man on their team, Lacey. And he is a native of South America.

The most brilliant man on the American team, with one possible exception, is Guest, son of an Englishman with an American mother.

And the greatest polo player of all time, Devereux Milburn, born in Buffalo, was the son of an Englishman, a great lawyer.

The British seem to have the solid material and this climate seems to speed it up.

SIR FREDERICK POLLOCK, a great authority on international law, accepted on Thursday last, an honorary degree from Columbia University. The presence of Sir Frederick honored the university, and all connected with it, for Sir Frederick Pollock is in the best sense of the word a learned man, possessing knowledge and able to impart it.

HIS BRIEF analysis of the Monroe Doctrine, which the late Senator Lodge caused to be printed as a United States document, is the best exposition of that doctrine ever written.

And his book on the life and philosophy of Spinoza is one that should be read by every man interested in philosophical thought and in Spinoza, greatest intellectual genius produced by the Jewish race.

ON BENDED KNEES, with his high forehead buried in his two hands, James Hamilton Lewis, of Chicago, should be rendering thanks night and morning from now until election day.

A "lady enemy" of Ruth Hanna McCormick, named Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill, enters the Illinois race for senator as a bone-dry independent.

In the primaries Mrs. McCormick was dry. Now Illinois has voted wet and, Mrs. McCormick, sensibly, as a candidate for office, accepts the view of the people.

BUT ILLINOIS politicians think the combative Mrs. Lottie will get enough dry Republican votes to make it impossible for the also combative Mrs. Ruth to win.

And James Hamilton Lewis, born wet, and never dry one second since, will walk in, over the bodies of two fighting ladies.

Who says "woman has made no difference in politics?"

COSTE, PEERLESS French flier, "hopping" from New York to Dallas, Tex., 1,700 miles for a special prize of $25,000, says on arrival:

"Pouf, pouf! That was nothing."

He made it in less than 12 hours.

He says also, writing to Mr. Adolph S. Ochs, that the next time he flies, he will take an American with him, because "We find you very amusing, you Americans."

Some Americans that go to Paris find the French "very amusing," which makes the account even.

CONCERNING PROHIBITION Coste says it doesn't make much difference to him, "for I drink very little, besides water."

Nevertheless, observing how we live here, he asks with Gaelic humor, "Why not move the Statue of Liberty to Paris?"

ONE THOUSAND are dead in Santo Domingo, 5,000 hurt, 30,000 homeless, in latest reports. Of 10,000 buildings, only 400 are left standing.

It will take a great deal more than $20,000 sent by the American Red Cross, to provide for that situation.

THERE IS GOOD NEWS even in bad news. Good news concerning the tornado tells that its force has been spent. It will not, in all probability, injure Florida or any part of the United States coast.

IT IS HARD for a radical to remain radical, after he becomes successful. Ramsay MacDonald, on a vacation, first stopped at magnificent Dunrobin Castle, far north in Scotland, as guest of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland.

From Dunrobin he went to Loch Chuir, to visit the Marquis and Marchioness of Londonderry.

And, at this moment he is at Balmoral Castle, spending the week-end with the King and the Queen.

NAPOLEON, WHEN he invented the Legion of Honor, said that with a little piece of red ribbon he could make a good "imperialist" of the wildest radical.

A few week-ends with dukes, marquesses and the King and Queen of England can do a good deal to modify the radicalism of a labor prime minister, when they happen to have one.

CANONSBURG RAIDED BY WILSON

Facing Transfer, Prohibition Chief Here Hits Again in 'Farewell Dry Crusade'

As advocates of aggressive enforcement of prohibition realized that Prohibition Administrator Harold D. (Three-Gun) Wilson was being "shipped to the minors" by being transferred to the Wilmington (Del.) district, Wilson last night made another series of liquor raids.

He personally led raids on six lodges and social clubs in Canonsburg.

Wilson had the co-operation of the Canonsburg police in the raids. The federal agents and state policemen visited the Moose, Eagles, German Beneficial Union, the French, Dutch and Polish Falcons' clubs, and reported confiscating quantities of beer and whisky in each place.

SEIZE SLOT MACHINES

Slot machines also were seized.

The machines were turned over to local police, who will prefer charges of maintaining gambling devices.

Seven prisoners who were taken in the raids will be arraigned for hearings before a Canonsburg justice of the peace Monday. The cases are to be tried in the Washington county courts as violations of the Snyder act.

REMOVAL CAUSES STIR

The raids came within a few hours after it had been announced that Prohibition Administrator

Elsie Janis Quits Theater to Write

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Elsie Janis, a leading actress for a quarter of a century, said she had quit the stage forever. Miss Janis explained she was going to do the thing she long had desired to do—write.

In announcing her decision the actress said she could not quit the stage as long as her mother was alive. The mother, Mrs. Josephine Janis, died seven weeks ago.

SLEEP-WALKER'S DEATH

Mary Rizzo, 9, 5003 Penn avenue, in her sleep took this death plunge from the third story.

SLEEP-WALKING GIRL FALLS TO DEATH

Plunges Three Floors When Grandmother's Warning Startles From Slumber

Startled by a warning cry as she sat asleep at the open third-story window of her home, 5003 Penn avenue, Mary Rizzo, 9, fell to the sidewalk and was injured fatally, early today.

She was pronounced dead three hours after she was taken to St. Francis Hospital by her father, Anthony Rizzo, who conducts a confectionery store on the first floor of the Penn avenue address.

Mary's grandmother, Mrs. Florence Rizzo, 67, who had reared her since she was two weeks old, was awakened by the child walking around their third-floor bedroom in her sleep, she said.

FATAL WARNING

She aroused Mary, who went back to bed.

Later the grandmother awoke to see Mary seated asleep on the window ledge, and called:

"Mary," she said in warning.

The child awoke suddenly. Confused, she turned the wrong way and fell through the open window.

HAD RETURNED TO SCHOOL

Mary, a fourth grade pupil at the Garfield public school, had returned to her studies with the opening of the fall term.

Her father said she had been in ill health for a long time, and had many restless nights, but never before was known to walk in her sleep.

STORM VICTIMS BURNED ON PYRES

Toll in Santo Domingo May Reach 2,000; More Than 4,000 Others Injured

International News Service.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Sept. 6.—In a famished and thirsty city ravaged by Wednesday's hurricane which skeletonized almost 10,000 homes, relief workers pursued a morbid task today of dragging bodies from the tumbled ruins and burning them on funeral pyres in an effort to prevent a fearful epidemic.

Hour by hour, the rows of bodies lengthened, establishing a growing conviction that the final number of dead in the worst Caribbean catastrophe in recent years would reach 2,000.

Semi-official counts estimated that between 1,000 and 1,400 bodies already had been recovered, with many collapsed structures as yet unsearched.

4,000 INJURED

Attempts to actually count the endless parade of injured given emergency medical treatment since Wednesday proved futile, but tentative figures ranged between 4,000 and 5,000.

The disaster, from first reports concentrated itself in the capital, but it was believed some damage and loss of life occurred also in the inland provinces.

Faced with extreme difficulties and crippled water and light supply, President Rafael L. Trujillo ordered establishment of martial law in the city to prevent looting. Rolling kitchens provided rations to pitiful lines of distracted men, women and children.

Relief expeditions from Porto Rico and elsewhere were sched-

CHEESE KING AND GUESTS LOSE GEMS

Jason F. Whitney, Wife And Friends Victims of Auto Holdup in Chicago

EVANSTON, Ill., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Jason F. Whitneys and a party of four en route to their home here after attending a theater were robbed of jewelry valued at $130,000 early today by four young robbers, two of whom wore handkerchief masks.

One of the members of the party was James A. Hewett, of Manchester, England, who is a house guest of the Whitneys.

RETURN FROM THEATER

The party had attended the theater in Chicago and were dropping one of the guests, Mrs. Gladys S. Mehan, at her home when the Whitney car was crowded to the curb by the robbers' machine.

Rings, bracelets and necklaces were stripped from their wearers at the point of revolvers. The robbery was executed so quickly that the bandits' car had disappeared into the darkness toward Chicago before the alarm could be spread.

Mrs. Whitney reported her personal loss was $125,000, including a ring valued at $50,000.

After the theater, the party had stopped at a restaurant where, police believe, the dazzling gems were observed by the four men who a few minutes later stole them.

Mrs. Whitney was the immediate objective of the robbers when they surprised the party. One of the bandits started tearing her ornaments from her until she exclaimed:

"I'll give you everything if you won't harm us."

Then they allowed her to hand over the valuables. Besides the ring, 15 carats in size, Mrs. Whitney lost five bracelets and a necklace. One of the other women was allowed to keep her necklace, comparatively modest in value.

POLICE PURSUIT

The bandits also demanded the keys of the Whitney car, which they carried off with them to prevent immediate pursuit. The Evanston police were notified by telephone and flashed word of the robbery to Chicago. A radio alarm sent 15 squad cars to Sheridan road in an effort to intercept the bandits.

Besides the Whitneys, Mrs. Mehan and Hewett, the party included Mr. and Mrs. Oliver A. Blackburn. Blackburn is secretary of the Kraft-Phenix Corporation.

Coolidge Deems Man More Destructive Than Storms

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Sept. 6.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Two recent events remind us again that man is almost helpless against the elements. One was the earthquake around Naples in Italy, where many hundreds of people were killed and much property destroyed, and the other was the tropical hurricane which passed over Santo Domingo, almost obliterating that ancient city and carrying death to several hundred of its inhabitants.

Calvin Coolidge

Such catastrophes move the heart of humanity to sympathy and at once set in motion the relief agencies of the neighboring governments and the American Red Cross. The realization of our common helplessness against such upheavals of nature arouses in us a stronger sense of our common brotherhood. For some reason difficult to explain, a sudden disaster of this kind, entirely beyond human control, moves people to compassion while they are more or less indifferent to the slaughter of three thousand tribesmen around Mount Ararat and to a far greater loss of life and property in China through deliberate human action, by war and resulting famine. With all our civilization, all our humanity, all our religion, men are still less in danger from the elements than they are from each other.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

LOTTERY MAN HELD UP

A war on "numbers" writers preying upon school children, a holdup of a "numbers" headquarters in Rankin by two armed Negroes, and a reported loss of $150,000 by the North Side lotteries, were the latest developments in the "numbers" racket today.

According to a report, two masked Negroes held up a "numbers" operator as he was leaving his alleged establishment in Fourth street, Rankin yesterday. The bandit escaped with $2,000, the reports say. Police and detectives deny knowledge of the robbery.

While the North Side operators are struggling to recuperate from the $150,000 loss suffered this week, a new menace in the form of a rival lottery strove to put them out of business. The new group is reported to have started when extra demands for protection money were made. It is reported that the present lottery leaders in the district are paying 20 per cent of the wagers for protection. The new clique are placing heavy wagers on popular numbers in an effort to put the present machine out of the running.

Arrests are being awaited on Safety Director Clark's war on bookies preying on school children.

President of du Pont Company Marries

WILMINGTON, Del., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Mrs. Carolene H. Stollenwerck, of Scarsdale, N. Y., and Lammot du Pont, president of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., were married yesterday at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs Rogers Wilson, in Wilmington.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frederick T. Ashton, pastor of Christ Episcopal Church. Only immediate members of the two families were present. After a short trip the couple will reside at du Pont's home, St. Amour, near Wilmington.

BREAK IN MAIN FLOODS BLOCKS

Scores of cellars in the East North Side district were still flooded today as employes of the city water department sought to repair a break in the 36-inch main in Suismon street which flooded the district and turned streets into torrents during the night.

The break was one of the worst in years and the loss of water enormous, according to Robert Black, assistant superintendent of city water. Water was still pouring from the five-foot hole in the street as city employes went about their work.

The break occurred shortly after midnight. With a roar heard several blocks, the water shot through the street, tearing with it huge pieces of asphalt, small stones and dirt.

PEOPLE WATCH FLOW

Within 15 minutes after the break, there was five feet of water in Suismon street in the block be-

Poor Box Robber Given Fine of $25

August Macione, 35, of 952 Kirkbride street, was identified in North Side police court today as the man seen fleeing from St. Gabriel's Catholic church, California and Superior avenues, Thursday after the poor box had been robbed of $7. He denied the charge but Magistrate J. J. Connors fined him $25 with the option of serving 30 days in the workhouse.

Shaler Seeks School Quiz By State

The Shaler Township school strike took on added momentum last night when 300 residents formed the Civic Association of Shaler Township, with the object of obtaining immediate betterment of the school situation.

Members of the new organization voted to ask the state school authorities to investigate the situation, unless the township board acts by Monday tonight to provide a temporary building for 90 pupils of the Braun school, ordered transferred to the Glenshaw building.

According to Beet, the school board contemplates running only two buses, which he contends are inadequate. The Glenshaw school, he declared, has been branded a firetrap by state inspectors.

The local board ordered the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the Braun school shifted to Glenshaw, they asserted, after the state school authorities had refused to let the students be housed in the basement.

Parents of striking pupils at the Obey school, Crafton Heights, continued defiant today. Truant officers will make no move to enforce attendance at the Schaeffer school, to which the pupils were transferred, it was said, pending a hearing before the school board, September 23.

Bridgeville Dog Racing Due Monday

Greyhound racing will be resumed Monday at the Bridgeville Speedway, according to an announcement made by promoters of the track today. A hundred dogs were moved to the track yesterday. The program calls for 10 races each night.

POLICE HOLD 2 IN ARSON PLOT

Michael Laulitta, 46, and his son, Daniel, 16, of 1100 North Wheeler street, owner of the three-story vacant house at 1054 Wheeler street, destroyed by a fire Wednesday night and in whose ruins the body of a man was found yesterday, were to be turned over today to the homicide squad for questioning.

The father and son were arrested on suspicious person charges in their home today by Police Lieut. John A. Jones and Mounted Patrolman Samuel McCandless. It was Lieut. Jones who followed a "hunch" and went to the ruins yesterday, discovering the body of Joseph Skiroc, 35, of 8116 Franks-town avenue.

The two policemen went to the ruins again last night and in the rear of the basement found two empty five-gallon cans. After canvassing gasoline stations the police learned that Wednesday night Skiroc purchased eight gallons of gasoline in the two cans from a Hamilton avenue garage owner.

Trixie Friganza Sued For 1927 Income Tax

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(INS.)—Trixie Friganza, vaudeville and screen actress, owes the United States government $2,603.21 as unpaid taxes on her 1927 income, it is charged in a lien in Federal Court here today.

The claim was filed by the Internal Revenue Bureau which, at the same time, obtained discharge of a $6,678 lien against Annette Kellerman, former diving star.

Runaway Monkey Mascot Gives Sleeper Fright

Ike Harding had just dozed off to sleep early today in his bedroom on the second floor of the Eberhart Building opposite West View Park when he was awakened by a hairy hand grasping at his throat. With chills running up and down his back he leaped from bed and switched on the light.

A frightened monkey sat on the pillow. Harding closed the bedroom window through which the animal had entered and made the monkey a prisoner.

Five hours before, the monkey, the mascot of the West View football team, escaped from Paul Muzzio, the manager, while Muzzio and other team members were attending the West View firemen's carnival in Perry Highway. The animal climbed to the roof of a nearby building. Firemen, with ladders, football players with ropes and citizens with sticks and stones sought to capture it.

At 2 o'clock this morning the chase was abandoned as the monkey had refused to come down from the roof the Eberhart Building. Harding, who had participated in the chase, went home to bed only to be awakened by the strange bedfellow.

The monkey was returned to Muzzio.

DONOHOE MURDER JURY VIEWS BULLET-RIDDLED AUTO

TESTIMONY RESUMED TODAY

12 Peers, Ordered Silent by Court, Keep Mum After Seeing Blood-Stained Car

BULLETIN.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Suffering almost complete lapse of memory concerning the activities of Anthony W. Bell, former county detective on the night of Constable John F. Donohoe's murder, Mrs. Helen Hess, reputed queen of Fayette County's underworld, was an unwilling witness against the former county officers this morning.

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Having viewed at first hand the blood-stained and bullet-riddled automobile in which Constable John F. Donohoe met his death last summer, the jury of nine men and three women in the trial of former County Detective Anthony W. Bell is prepared to hear the rental of testimony around which the commonwealth puts its charge for conviction.

By special order of the court the jury accompanied by the defendant, the attorneys, from each side and Judge Thomas H. Hudson, viewed the murder car in the Livengood garage here at the adjournment of the court tonight.

STAND SILENT

Slowly the nine men and three women circled about the machine. Not a word was spoken, remarks from jurors, attorneys and defendant having been prohibited by court order.

They stood in silence for a moment around the machine. One by one they looked into the blood-stained and bullet-ridden interior, then filed out into the street and back to the court house.

Court had adjourned after cross-examination of County Detective A. A. Downing who identified bullets, clothing and other pieces of evidence submitted by the commonwealth as exhibits.

Special Prosecutor A. E. Jones conducted the state's examination of the witness. District Attorney J. B. Adams and Second Assistant William J. Crow had seats at counsel table, but took no part in the proceedings.

2 NEW JUDGES TAKE OATH OF OFFICE

Dithrich, McNaugher Sworn In to Fill Vacancies On Common Pleas Bench

W. Heber Dithrich, former county solicitor, and William H. McNaugher, were sworn in as judges today by Presiding Judge James R. Macfarlane in the assignment room of Common Pleas Court.

Gov. John S. Fisher's commission appointing Judge Dithrich to the bench was presented by Attorney H. Fred Mercer and Judge McNaugher's commission was presented by Attorney George P. Alter.

FILL VACANCIES

Judge Dithrich will occupy the chambers of former Judge Thomas Ford, who resigned recently due to his failing health. Judge McNaugher fills the vacancy created by the resignation of Judge Thomas D. Carnahan.

The assignment room was decorated with a floral display for the occasion. Among those who witnessed the ceremonies were the judges of Common Pleas, Orphans and County courts, the mother of Judge Dithrich, Dr. John McNaugher, father of the judge and president of the Theological Seminary and a delegation from the Eighth U. P. Church, of which Judge McNaugher is a member.

DELAY APPOINTMENT

County Commissioners have delayed appointing a successor to Dithrich, who resigned as county solicitor yesterday.

Expectations have been that the commissioners would promote Attorney Mortimer B. Lesher, now assistant to the county solicitor with a salary increase from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. But when Dithrich's resignation was accepted yesterday at a commissioners' meeting, Commissioner Edward V. Babcock left hurriedly before a successor could be considered.

Rumors bobbed up after the meeting that the majority commissioners intended to try to lull criticism by appointing a "dog man" as solicitor and increasing the salary to $15,000. The name of Attorney George I. Alter was conspicuous in the gossip.

Friends of Commissioner Charles C. McGovern predicted he would vigorously oppose any such increase in pay.

PENNSY COOL TO ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE

Diesel Too Weak, Official Asserts, Giving Setback To Anti-Smoke Movement

Electrification of railroads here within a short time by the use of Diesel-electric locomotives received a setback yesterday with the announcement by H. W. Jones, superintendent of motive power for the Pennsylvania Railroad, that such equipment in its present state of development was unable to handle heavy loads.

Locomotives of the type developed so far he said have but enough traction power to be used as shifting engines in yards.

Leaders of the Chamber of Commerce smoke abatement committee striving for electrification of railroads here suggested larger locomotives of the same order as the 60-ton type now being used for experimental purposes on the Pennsylvania lines be constructed and placed in service. This program would abate, it was said, a large portion of the smoke evil. Locomotives could be used to bring trains through the city from transfer points nearby where the steam engines could be left.

CO-OPERATION SOUGHT

The Chamber's present program calls for co-operation in obtaining complete electrification. Railroad officials say present conditions do not warrant the great expenditure.

"The tests made with the Diesel locomotive have been excellent so far, but in their present state of development the engines have not the power to haul heavy loads. It will take, possibly, three to four years before certain difficulties in this respect are solved."

No one at the Pennsylvania Station would venture an opinion whether that railroad would use the locomotives when they are perfected. The locomotive with which experiments are being made, Jones said, was built in Pittsburgh by the H. K. Porter Company and weighs 120,000 pounds. Passenger locomotives used by most railroads weigh from 300,000 pounds up, without tenders.

GARLAND PROTESTS

City Councilman Robert Garland, father of the smoke abatement activities here and vice chairman of the smoke abatement committee, said Pittsburgh was not "getting a fair break" by the railroads in this respect.

He charged:

"Pittsburgh is about the only big city in the United States where some sort of an electrification program for railroads has not been started. It is deplorable. I have said before on many occasions that home owners are put to a big cleaning expense, railroad patrons are subject to much discomfort and the railroad organizations are stepping backward instead of going forward on account of this."

FORECASTS ACTIVITY

Garland said the smoke abatement committee, inactive during the past summer months, intended beginning a program of activity soon in connection with the project.

Files in the office of City Clerk Robert Clark show there is no legislation here to compel any railroad to use anything for fuel besides smoke-producing bituminous coal. In the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad franchise is a provision, Clark said, restricting the volume of smoke allowed to pour from locomotives, but none stressing any particular kind of fuel. Coke and anthracite, when used in locomotives, produce no smoke, engineers say.

uled to arrive today with food, tenting, clothing and medical supplies and doctors. First relief reached the city yesterday when airplanes from the United States Marine station at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, arrived with most-urgently-needed medical supplies.

The dead spectre of epidemic hovered in the background causing authorities to redouble efforts to prevent inception of disease through the stricken area. As a drastic preventive step, the safety committee appointed by President Trujillo to guard public health ordered quick disposal of all bodies so far recovered. Burial was out of the question, so the huge funeral pyres were built, and throughout the night the flames reached into the sky.

Deprived of homes, survivors wandered in grief-stricken groups between crumpled remains of what once was a community of wide avenues. Only those houses built solidly remained standing, but even their roofs had been jerked away. Block after block of spacious mansions had fallen before the fury of the 150-mile wind in four hours; pavements and streets are littered with debris and telegraph poles.

tween East and Middle streets. Residents of the street stood on porches or leaned from bedroom windows watching the water as it shot up 10 feet.

Scores of calls were sent to the police, the North Side fire alarm operator and to the city water department. Workmen were sent immediately but it was not until 4 o'clock that they could stop the geyser. The workmen went about the district, shutting off lines leading from the main and lowering gates at different points in the main itself. The main brings water to the East North Side district from the Cabbage Hill reservoir in Millvale.

Police were stationed throughout the district, keeping automobiles from passing over the flooded thoroughfares, particularly Suisman street, which may be undermined. It was said pumpers of the fire department were to be used in clearing the cellars today. While the repair work is going on residents of the district are without their supply.

Cellars were flooded in East street, Foreland street, East Ohio, Tripoli and Middle streets and Madison avenue. The damage from water also is said to have reached as far as Chestnut street. Black refused to estimate the amount of water lost and no estimate of the damage could be obtained.

FORD STUDIES LINER ON TRIP

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Henry Ford sailed for Europe last night aboard the liner Bremen. He said he planned to return on the Europa, sister ship of the Bremen, so he could study both of the new fast German liners at first hand.

Ford said he planned to visit Ford factories in Europe and inspect sites for additional Ford plants abroad.

He said he expected to see an early resumption of normal business conditions.

One of the objects of his trip, he said, was to witness the passion play at Oberammergau.

Concerning trade with Russia, Ford said he had always dealt direct with the Soviet government in his Russian business and not with individuals, adding that he expected to continue to do business in Russia on the same basis in the future.

2nd Beauty Shop Bombed in Chicago

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Another beauty-shop bombing, the second in two days, last night blew out the front of the Famous Beauty Shop on North Cicero avenue.

WILSON RAIDS CANONSBURG

John D. Pennington, of the Pennsylvania-New Jersey-Delaware area, had recommended that Wilson be transferred from Pittsburgh to Wilmington, where the staff consists of only six agents. Pennington's recommendation has caused a stir among strong advocates for strict prohibition enforcement in this district.

Friends of Deputy Administrator Wilson look upon the transfer to Wilmington as a demotion, after he had established a record here as one of the most active enforcement officers ever assigned to Pittsburgh.

Since assuming charge of this district July 1, when the prohibition department was transferred from the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice, Wilson established a record as a raider, unearthing sources of bootleg liquor supplies and crippling carlot shipping of contraband liquor.

One of the first big raids he directed and personally participated in soon after taking charge here was that on the Amen Corner annual picnic at the Indian Mound, below McKees Rocks. This raid caused comment because of the prominence of public office holders and politicians attending it.

U. S. SEEKS BIDS ON P. O. WORK

No agreement has been reached by representatives of the architects employed by the government and local officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad regarding the grade of the postal car sidings to be placed in the proposed $8,000,000 postoffice building at Seventh avenue and Grant street.

Despite this, the postoffice advanced one step toward becoming a reality yesterday. Internal Revenue Collector D. B. Heiner, custodian of the site for the building, received copies of an advertisement seeking bids for core borings, preparatory to letting a contract for the foundation. The bids for the borings are to be opened in Washington, September 19.

Architects in conference here are employes of the firm of Trowbridge and Livingston, New York, engaged to draw the plans. W. D. Wiggins, chief engineer of the railroad, met with them.

The architects did not ask for any specific lowering of the track level but were informed by Wiggins what the lowest grade and maximum overhead clearance the railroad would agree to.

Race Track Employs Radio Rain-Control

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Belmont Park race track has hired a specialist to prevent rain with a radio machine. The Park Association will collect from G. A. I. M. Sykes $1,000 for every weekday and $2,000 for every Saturday that rain drenches the track. If it is pleasant, Sykes will collect what he would pay if it rains. Sykes has a secret apparatus which he claims will prevent rain or bring it. The Park is doubtful, but will take a chance as insurance.

Shot Mother-in-Law, Gets Four Months

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 6.—Convicted of aggravated assault and battery, Mrs. Rose Lacava, 20, of Charleroi, who shot and wounded her mother-in-law, Mrs. Catherine Lacava, 50, in Charleroi last spring, was sentenced to four months in the county jail yesterday by Judge James I. Brownson.

The two women had quarreled frequently. On the occasion of the shooting the younger woman claimed her mother-in-law threatened her with a knife and she fired in self defense.

Divorce Suit Charges Hypnotism Attempt

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Elizabeth Kerr Harvey, formerly a soprano with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, filed a bill for divorce against Dr. James Frederick Harvey, charging that on one occasion he attempted to hypnotize her into walking when she was too ill to stand.

The bill alleges Dr. Harvey complained she was not recovering rapidly enough after an illness, announced he was a hypnotist and could make her walk, then seized her and forced her to walk up and down a hall until she became hysterical.

Writer Decries U. S. Money in France

PARIS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Clement Vautel, who conducts a column in Le Journal, would rather see historic French buildings crumble than be restored with American cash. He writes:

"It is a happy thing that the American crash has put a brake on the sometimes little discreet generosity of trans-Atlantic millionaires. Nothing minimises the prestige of France as much as these gifts."

Accused of Stealing $50,000 in Nickels

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(INS)—William Lang, 32, was under arrest here today charged with stealing $50,000—all in nickels.

Telephone company officials said that in the last three years Lang had obtained that huge sum by robbing coin boxes.

Coachman's Will Disposes of Fortune

REDWOOD CITY, Cal., Sept. 6.—(AP)—The will of David William Crowley, coachman for the late Templeton Crocker, California financier, disposed of an estate estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000. The will was admitted to probate here yesterday.

Noted Violinist's Wife Gets Divorce

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Marie Hartmann, wife of Arthur Hartmann, internationally known violinist, was granted a divorce in Superior Court here.

Mrs. Hartmann said her husband cursed her and their daughter and declared he wished he never had been married. She said he left her and went to Philadelphia. Mrs. Hartmann was given custody of their children, Gregory, 18, and Helen, 13.

California Recluse Dies of Beating

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Giovanni Marcelli, 70, San Bruno recluse, died today from a beating last Wednesday supposedly at the hands of robbers seeking the hiding place of his rumored hoard of gold.

Police believed two men and a girl, seen to enter Marcelli's cabin that day, beat and tortured the aged man when he refused to disclose where he had hidden his supposed fortune.

Harmony's Bus Fare Cut, Hits 25-Cent System

A 10-mile bus ride for 21 cents is being offered by the Harmony Short Line Motor Transportation Company.

This new rate, far below that on which the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company insists it can operate, is being offered between downtown Pittsburgh and Allison Park. It is offered on a monthly 60-trip ticket basis and the exact maximum ride for 21 cents is 10 1-5 miles.

This rate would force the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, which insists on 25-cent rates on its bus lines, to revamp its schedule in the event it attempted to compete with the Short Line service by establishing an Etna route.

In announcing the new service, which will be operated with modern 21-passenger buses, R. M. Glick, secretary and treasurer of the Short Line Company, said he was confident the volume of business the low rates would attract would make the venture profitable.

Hearst Buys Elizabethan Room for Norman Castle

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(Universal.)—The famous Elizabethan "Great Chamber" of Gilling Castle, Yorkshire, England, recognized as one of the finest Elizabethan rooms of its period extant, has been purchased by William Randolph Hearst, it was announced today.

Mr. Hearst bought it from Arthur S. Vernay, of London and New York, president of the Vernay galleries, on the eve of its intended departure for the United States. When Vernay bought the "great chamber" recently he is said to have paid for it a sum running into six figures.

Mr. Hearst plans immediately to re-erect the historic panelling and stained glass in the old Norman castle, St. Donat, in South Wales, which he purchased five years ago. This ancient fortress with its gatehouse, portcullis, guard room and watch tower has been restored to its former splendor.

It is being converted into a treasure house to which have been brought relics of noble English houses, objects of art from France, as well as treasures from all other parts of the world, including many bought in America. Vernay intended to transport the "great chamber" to America. The British press today was quoted as strong in its expression of satisfaction that the famous room will remain in the empire.

Gilling Castle is famous for its display of sixteenth century glass, where there are several windows with beautiful heraldic glazing. Sir William Fairfax succeeded to Gilling Castle from his father, Sir Nicholas Fairfax, in 1571.

MARTIAL LAW IN ARGENTINA AS PRESIDENT STEPS ASIDE

AIDE GIVEN POWERS BY IRIGOYEN

Executive's Act Temporary But Implications Are He Has Lost Office for Good

By PERCY FORSTER
International News Service

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 6.—The Argentine, mystified and somewhat taken aback by the lightning like political developments which overnight influenced President Hipolito Irigoyen to delegate the executive power temporarily to Vice President Enrique S. Martinez, resumed along quiet lines today under the guidance hand of martial law.

Buenos Aires' first day of calm after a burst of intense excitement and a clash between police and demonstrators in which some blood was spilled, slept peacefully under the active rule of a man practically unknown to the country until he was brought to the forefront during Irigoyen's 1928 presidential campaign.

MAKES USE OF LAW

President Irigoyen's action fell like a bombshell coming on the heels of an understanding with his cabinet ministers that their demand for his resignation would be definitely answered Monday. He temporarily abandoned executive power under a provision of the Argentine constitution which permits the president to delegate full powers to the vice president and reassume them at any time.

Despite this conditional resignation it was felt Irigoyen had stepped out of office permanently. It was pointed out that until a few hours before his retirement he had failed completely to realize that political opposition to his policies had grown to overwhelming proportions.

Shortly after Martinez assumed executive power he issued a decree establishing martial law in Buenos Aires for 30 days, for the purpose of normalizing the situation created by the events which are known to everybody.

Troops posted the proclamation everywhere with strong detachments on the alert for major outbreaks. However after the first outburst the city quieted rapidly.

CLIMAXES TENSE WEEK

Irigoyen's temporary retirement climaxed a week of political disturbance. A week ago the capital was thrown into a furore when, without warning, police and soldiers were rushed to the executive mansion and the cabinet ministers closeted themselves with President Irigoyen. The next morning mounted machine guns and hundreds of fixed bayonets guarded the executive palace and government buildings.

Rumors that a revolutionary plot and attempt to assassinate the president had been frustrated spread.

In the succeeding days the capital saw itself transformed into an armed camp. Soldiers and sailors were posted everywhere although no coup of any sort materialized.

Pigeon Arrives Late With Message Intact

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP).—Weary and bedraggled and more than 36 hours late, but with his message intact, Bobby Jones, pedigreed carrier pigeon, arrived at his home loft yesterday after a 90-mile flight from Camden, N. J.

Bobby Jones was released Wednesday with an application for a $20,000 surety bond attached to his leg. The bird's feathers were smeared with oil, indicating Frank J. Weiss, its owner, said, that it had been forced down on oil-covered water.

SEES BENEFIT IN MERGER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 6 (AP).—W. C. Reilly, vice president in charge of operations of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, testified that he favored the merger with Bethlehem Steel Corporation because Sheet and Tube faced the prospect of seeing its equipment made obsolete and he thought it would be a "good thing if we could get Bethlehem money to remodel our plants."

Reilly was the second witness introduced by the defense in the suit brought by the Cyrus S. Eaton interests to enjoin the merger on the ground that it was unfair to Youngstown stockholders and not properly executed.

The Associated Press yesterday inadvertantly quoted George O. May, auditor, testifying in the hearing as stating that he did not consider the executive bonus plan of the Bethlehem corporation in figuring the combined earnings for the exchange of stock with Youngstown.

What May said was that he made no such adjustments because he saw no reason for such an adjustment, since the Bethlehem bonus already had been eliminated from the combined earnings.

Round up 400 Wild Horses in Nevada

TONOPAH, Nev., Sept. 6.—(AP).—Four hundred wild horses in the valleys surrounding Tonopah were rounded up yesterday, most of them to be slaughtered.

Horses sold for slaughter bring 90 cents a hundred pounds. Some of the meat will be canned for shipment to foreign countries.

STATE'S LABOR OFFICE SEEKS JOB NEWS

Mitchell Asks Welfare Agencies to Assist by Telling of Opportunities

An appeal was made today by J. F. Mitchell, superintendent of the state employment office here, to welfare organizations knowing of possible work for the needy to submit such information to him so applicants can be taken care of.

Use of the state employment office at 622 Grant street as a "clearing house" for jobs during the present industrial depression was offered by Mictheil this week.

Since the announcement hundreds of men and women have applied there but possible employers have been lax in letting him know what they had to offer.

ANXIOUS TO HELP

Mitchell said:

"I am asking any welfare organizations who know where jobs can be procured to pass this information on to us. And if we know of jobs which can be given to persons coming under the care of the societies, we'll be glad to pass the word along."

There are many jobless boys, men and women willing to do any kind of work, it was said to tide them over until better times develop.

CHANCE FOR FORTUNATE

Included are those who are willing to mow lawns, act as domestics, day laborers, errand boys and handy men. Even those for whom a day's work only can be offered will be given attention, should openings develop. It is pointed out that the fortunate who have not felt the effects of the depression have an opportunity to get work done cheaply and at the same time assist those in need.

In discussing the employment problem and depression in the Greater Pittsburgh district, Mitchell intimated the worst was over and better times were in sight.

The telephone number of the state employment office is Atlantic 7950. Offers of employment can be phoned to Mitchell and his aides, he said, and applicants will be notified of opportunities that develop.

CHAIR ON FIRE, SLEEPS ON

When John Kanva, 25, of 2518 Carey way, once gets to sleep, he sleeps soundly in spite of fire and smoke, his wife told firemen who extinguished a blaze in their home today.

Mrs. Kanva said she left her husband at home with their daughter, Dorothy, 1, while she went to the store. When she returned her husband was asleep in his chair, which had caught fire from his cigaret.

She picked up the baby, which had been crying because of the smoke, and had to shake her husband several times before he awoke, she said.

150 Hear Aviator Talk of 'Chute Leaps

Lieut. W. S. Rosenberger, director of flying at the Pittsburgh-Butler airport of the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, gave an illustrated talk on parachute jumping at a meeting of the Traffic and Transportation Association of Pittsburgh last night in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. More than 150 members of the association were present.

HUSBAND LEAPS TO RIVER, SAVED COMRADE HERE

While his wife with whom he had been arguing looked on helpless, Ray Skyoski, 39, of 2714 Penn avenue, leaped into the Allegheny River from the Fortieth Street Bridge late last night. The alleged suicide attempt failed when rivermen pulled him into a skiff. They later turned him over to police.

Skyoski, father of five children, had been arguing with his wife while they walked across the bridge. He suddenly ran ahead of her for a short distance and leaped over the bridge rail. The leap was witnessed by several motorists and pedestrians. The rivermen who saw him dragged Skyoski into their skiff and turned him over to Special Patrolman Andrew Colebob.

PAYROLL THUGS ELUDE POLICE

Police today were without trace of the two bandits who stole the $3,500 payroll of Cruikshank Brothers from Francis Bradshaw, credit manager, as he alighted from a taxicab in front of the plant at Island and Preble avenues, yesterday afternoon.

The stickup pair, roughly dressed, leaped out of a machine as the cab, driven by Wallace Thompson, pulled to the curb. When Bradshaw stepped out with a package containing the money, the thugs thrust revolvers at him and seized the payroll. Bradshaw grappled with them, but was felled with a hard blow.

BYRD'S SCOUT COMRADE HERE

Paul Siple, prince of adventure to the world of youth, was Pittsburgh's guest last night.

Siple, who accompanied the Commander Richard E. Byrd expedition to the Antarctic as a representative of the Boy Scouts of America, was given the tribute of hundreds of Western Pennsylvania scouts who heard him speak in Horne's auditorium on his two-year adventures in the land of perpetual ice and hardship.

Arriving in the city with his sister, Mrs. I. W. Kittering, and his brother-in-law, he was met by a delegation including John Herron, city councilman; A. H. Burchfield, Sr.; Judge W. A. McNaugher, John A. Phillips, scout commissioner, and A. T. Benson, scout executive.

Mr. Burchfield, president of The Joseph Horne Company, was host at an informal dinner in the William Penn Hotel. An honor guard of eight eagle scouts conveyed Siple to the Horne auditorium, where hundreds of scouts and their leaders gave him a thunderous welcome.

At 10:30, under the guidance of Perry Boyd, Siple talked over Radio Station KDKA, rounding out his program.

Oil Co. Settles Suit for $300,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—(AP).—Claims aggregating $4,000,000 against the Standard Oil Company of California, owners of the steamer S. C. T. Dodd, which rammed and sank the coastal liner San Juan, with loss of 64 lives in August, 1929, were settled yesterday for $300,000.

Federal Judge St. Sure approved an agreement by which the oil company will turn over that amount for the benefit of 135 claimants.

Hoover's Fishing Book to be Printed

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP).—A book by President Hoover on fishing is to be published shortly. It will sell for $7 and 999 copies will be printed. It contains two speeches in 90 pages. One was made when as Secretary of Commerce he accepted the presidency of the Izaak Walton League; the other was an address to the people of Virginia inspired by his summer camp.

BALLOON TO TRY 10-MILE ASCENT

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Sept. 6.—(Universal).—Undisturbed by the fate of the Andree balloon expedition, Prof. Piccard, of Belgium, has arrived at Augsburg, Germany, there to begin another extraordinary and adventurous gas bag flight.

He intends to make a 10-mile solo flight into the unexplored upper reaches of the atmosphere.

The balloon, manufactured for him at Augsburg according to his own specifications, is ready for the fantastic venture. It will use a special gas. He expects the balloon to take him up 62,000 feet.

The bag is 97 feet in diameter, with a capacity for 16,000 cubic meters of gas. It is fastened to a globe-like car, made of aluminum, filled with oxygen and apparatus to register various scientific changes, and means of keeping Piccard warm.

At 50,000 feet it is estimated the Belgian experimenter will strike a temperature between 60 and 70 below zero. No human being has ever penetrated to such a height.

ANDREE'S HEIRS GET LOG BOOK

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 6.—(Universal).—The diaries and log book of Andree will be brought to Stockholm for his heirs.

Premier Ekman of Sweden made this statement to Universal service. He added:

"Then the government, jointly with the expert commission now at Tromsoe, and the heirs, will settle the question of publication rights. There are Andree heirs in Japan and Java, and everyone must have a voice."

This means that the publication of Salomon Auguste Andree's own record of his attempt in 1897 to cross the North Pole in a balloon may be delayed for more than three weeks. The Swedish cruiser Svensksund, which will bring the bodies here, will also bear the members of the commission.

The Svensksund will arrive at Tromsoe Sunday. It is expected to start back with Strindberg's and Andree's remains on Monday after a memorial service has been held. The warship may not reach Stockholm for 10 days. Meanwhile the government is trying to communicate with all of Andree's heirs.

Farmers Get Cut In Electricity Rate

FRANKLIN, Sept. 6.—Farmers in the Venango-Crawford County district have received notice that, effective October 1, electrical service rates will be reduced 12½ per cent. The reduction is effective for agricultural purposes. Minimum monthly charge will be $3, the Keystone Public Service concern announced in filing a schedule with the Public Service Commission.

FRENCH ACES CHEERED IN KENTUCKY

Greeted by Kisses of Belles And Triumphal Parade; Capital Prepares Welcome

International News Service

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 6.—The French trans-Atlantic fliers, Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, took off from the flying field here today for a nonstop flight to New York.

Perfect weather conditions favored the Frenchmen.

Capt. Coste said they would fly a straight course to West Point Military Academy and then to New York. They will drop a flag over the academy and another flag over Manhattan.

The Frenchmen were accompanied by their manager, Rene Racoer, who was flying in another ship.

Coste and Bellonte vetoed plans for elaborate entertainment after their arrival here from Dallas early last night, went to their hotel after a brief welcome and triumphant parade and retired.

KISSED BY BELLES

The fliers went to sleep with at least one noteworthy remembrance of their reception. They had been kissed by four Kentucky belles. When they climbed from the Question Mark at Bowman Field the four young women kissed each flier on both cheeks and presented each with a bouquet of dahlias.

The greeters were Misses Mary Ann Barnes, Virginia Walthen and Josephine Bowman, and Mrs. D. W. Fairleigh. The young women then formed a guard of honor while Mayor William B. Harrison escorted the airmen through a crowd of 6,000 to a microphone. After brief radio greetings, the aviators headed an automobile parade to their hotel.

ACTIVE TIME AHEAD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(INS).—Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Lieut. Maurice Bellonte will be whirled through a busy series of events in the national capital from the time they arrive Sunday afternoon until they leave Tuesday.

The high point of their visit will be the luncheon to be given by President Hoover at the White House at 1:15 p. m. Monday, which also will be attended by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and other aviation notables.

Pittsburgh Invites French Fliers' Visit

Capt. Dieudonne Coste and his co-pilot in the successful Paris-New York flight have been invited to visit Pittsburgh by James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Rae telegraphed the invitation yesterday. A reply received this morning thanked him and said the bid was being considered by experts in charge of the fliers' proposed tour of American cities.

Steps Between Cars, Run Down by Auto

Struck by an automobile as he stepped from between two parked cars in Water street, police say, Clyde Eastwood, 52, of 320 East Lacock street, was taken to the Allegheny General Hospital suffering a leg fracture and a broken nose. Lawrence Donnelly, 38, of 1013 Carson street, driver of the machine, was not held.

Clergymen Hold Prayers For Rain Useless

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Prayers for rain are futile in the opinion of a majority of prominent American clergymen who took part in a symposium conducted by the Christian Century Magazine.

"No imaginable connection exists between man's inward, spiritual attitude and a rainstorm."

So said Dr. Emerson Fosdick, of New York. Dr. W. P. Lemon, of Minneapolis, called praying for rain an attempt to involve God in a co-operative scheme to maintain present American living standards.

Dr. Mary Matthews, of Seattle, and Dr. James D. Gray, of Chicago, were among the minority in the symposium, declaring that God made the weather and could change it.

EWERS TELLS OF RUSSIA

The Russian peasants battle [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] regard them[illegible] selves, according to the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers, of the East End Christian Church, just returned from a trip to Russia and six other European countries. He was a member of the Sherwood Forest party, which included about 60 Americans.

Said Dr. Ewers:

"I spent over a week in Moscow and about one week in Leningrad. We went to a collective farm and saw the tractors in action and new farming experiment at first hand. More than 85 per cent of the Russians are peasants. Trotsky was banished because he refused to consider them. Russia has gone mad over machines. A new city, Stalingrad, has been built expressly to manufacture machines for farms. Individual farmers may be seen cutting the grain with sickles and flailing out the grains by hand. Then one comes upon the collective farm with its tractors, new dairy barns and piggeries. They bathe the pigs but neglect themselves."

STORES TO AID SAFETY WEEK

Stores, banks and office buildings throughout the city will cooperate with "Safety Week" and the Nineteenth Annual Safety Congress here September 29 to October 3 by placing safety exhibits and displays in their windows, it was announced today by Fred C. Schatz, chairman of the window display committee.

Many concerns will feature merchandise of their own which has an application to safety, tying up such displays with posters announcing the Congress. Others will be furnished with exhibits displaying safety devices.

CLUB NEWS

Unlike the majority of clubs, the Regent Square Woman's Club will not begin with president's day, but will reserve that for its second session, October 21. The first meeting will be held in Frick Park on September 16 and will be addressed by Mrs. Elizabeth B. Motz, of the County League of Women Voters. Dr. Susan W. Wiggins is the president's day speaker. The November meeting will be a visit to the International Art Exhibit with luncheon in the cafeteria, and December's will be a children's Christmas party. Members of the Swissvale Woman's Club will drop in for their annual visit in January, when the speaker is R. L. Williams of the Y. M. C. A. Anna Marshall McCracken is scheduled to speak the following month and a closed program is listed for March. April bringing the annual business meeting, May a program in charge of the altruistic committee, and June the annual luncheon at the Stanton Heights Country Club.

Plans Made

* * *

There was a good attendance, nearly 300, at the beautifully appointed reception given yesterday by the Congress of Clubs for its new members and directors. Mrs. Ralph W. Johnston, the president, Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, a past president, and the board formed the receiving line downstairs, the guests as they were welcomed moving to the auditorium where an exceptionally fine musical program was given at 3 o'clock. Frank Kennedy, so often a welcome guest at the Congress, played a Chopin "scherzo" and there were two groups of contralto solos beautifully sung by Sara Jamison Logan with Sybil Young accompanying, and two groups of baritone numbers sung with artistry by Robert Owrey, with Mr. Kennedy accompanying.

Unusually lovely decorations marked the affair. The mantels in the auditorium and lounge were banked with greens and huge bouquets of late sumer flowers, principally roses and yellow gladioli and larkspur were used.

The two tea tables were placed, one in the lounge and one in the dining room, with Mrs. George J. Campbell and Mrs. Coslowsky pouring.

Commercial Fair To Be Held in Sahara

ALGIERS, Sept. 6.—(AP)—There's to be a commercial fair next spring in the Sahara Desert. Caravans will bring goods for various tribes for exhibition and sale under the patronage of French military.

South Hills Club Opens Friday

Quite distinctive is the series of semi-monthly programs arranged by the South Hills College Club for the season. The new year books announce Friday as the opening date and for this the program will be given by Freeman Hammond, character impersonator, and Miss Grace McMillan, pianist. The president's reception, honoring Mrs. Ross K. Conaway, will be held September 26 at Mrs. J. L. Herrmann's home. October events are a talk on "Some Popular Fallacies in Modern Psychology," by Dr. Henry T. Link, a scholarship benefit bridge and a Hallowe'en party.

Of especial interest will be the visit of Mrs. Ellen G. Cross, president of the Philadelphia Federation of Women's Clubs in November, when she is to speak on "High Brows, Low Brows and Broad Brows." Also in November the club will view the International Art Exhibit.

The Christmas and seventh anniversary dinner will be held as one, the occasion also serving as a reception to new members. On January 9 a musicale will be held, and on the twenty-fourth an informal dinner dance for the members and their guests. An address and a party for children of members, a guest night and an evening bridge for members and guests follow, and then comes a talk by Mrs. Clifford C. Taylor, chairman of the State Federation's work for the blind on "The Shadowy Lane." The annual awarding of scholarships will take place at the spring tea for which the program will be given by the drama committee. Rudyard Boulton, assistant curator of ornithology, Carnegie Museum, will address the members in May, telling of "An Overland Trek From Cairo to Capetown," and the annual June luncheon will take place in the St. Clair Country Club.

* * *

A garden party will be held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Finley Weisenberger, a former president, by the Junior Section, Woman's Club of Crafton. During the afternoon a program will be given which will include music by Miss Gertrude Oetting and Miss Elizabeth Storer, and readings by Miss Dorothy Mulvey.

Walsh Opens Drive On 'Barking' Venders

Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh today ordered a drive on sidewalk dealers who bark their wares in the downtown district. Walsh recommended that names be taken and informations made Monday. Fines of $100 should be imposed on each violator by the magistrate, Walsh declared, as a means of breaking up the practice.

Girls Babble Young, Psychologist Finds

BRISTOL, England, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Loquacious woman begins young. Prof. C. W. Valentine, psychologist of the University of Science, says:

"Many infants love to babble long before their talk can have any definite meaning for them. I have noticed this more decidedly in my two little girls than in the boys."

TWEED WALKS INTO FALL STYLE MODE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

PARIS, Sept. 6.—Tweed walks out this Autumn with added assurance of its popularity and importance in the street scene. The weaves, are of course extremely fine, so much so, that it is sometimes quite difficult to recognize the material. It is so entirely different from the tweeds used years ago, when the fabric was intended only for suits designed to give protection from the elements. The English walking suits featured tweeds so sturdy and stiff, that although they were meant to wear out all the Winter and sometimes during the British version of Summer, they were guaranteed never to wear out at all. The textile manufacturers of France showed the way to better and finer tweeds, and women the world over have adopted the dress or suit of tweed with gratitude and gratification. We have learned to keep our tweed clothes free from trimming and superfluous detail and yet to avoid that "horsey" look that used to be associated with the tweed suit.

* * *

THERE'S NO DOUBT about it, the coat-dress of tweed has arrived. For women have realized its practical charm and its very youthifying qualities, and so are taking it up and out for walks these September days when returned vacationists throng the boulevards and find new charm and beauty in their lovely city. Hence, we thought that we would show you a sketch of a coat-dress, very much in the Parisian manner, the type of garment that is favored by the smartest women here just now. It is from Yteb and is of tweed in beige and brown, and is simply but effectively trimmed with a very wide brown leather belt and matching buttons. Brown accessories complete the color accent.

* * *

OF A VERY DIFFERENT genre, but evincing the same charm and simplicity, is the basque dress, from Lelong, in black velvet with a bodice trimming of ermine. The basque molds the figure and buttons in back. A slight dip is to be noticed at the back of the circular skirt. There is a combination of old-world charm and modern chic, in this model that is well-nigh irresistable, but it should be avoided by all, save those with a slim, but rounded figure.

Greet Fall in Canton Crepe

Pattern 2013

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

After a summer of cottons it is a delicious feeling to don a new Fall frock of sophisticated silk. I have chosen a particularly lovely model today with smart skirt flares, and becoming lingerie collar and cuffs cut with scalloped edges. The front and back bodice tucks continue in popularity, although you may wear a belt if you wish.

Pattern 2013 is equally lovely if made of plain or printed fabric . . . flat or canton crepe, velvet, heavy Elizabeth crepe, faille, etc. The travel-tweeds, as the new designs are called, are extremely smart and serviceable in mixed browns, blues, and black and whites. Organdy, silk crepe or batiste is used for trimming.

May be obtained only in sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 4⅝ yards of 39-inch material.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern. Yardage for every size and simple, exact instructions are given.

To My Successor

Congratulations, sir! I'm rather proud
That she picked out a striking lad like you.
Just think, if you'd been arrogant or loud,
How I'd have felt—I'm glad it isn't true.

And may I laud you on your perfect taste?
You'll find her charming to the nth degree.
A tip or two will never go to waste.
So jot these down—a parting gift from me.

Keep roses in her rooms—say, twice a week.
Get tickets when West Point plays Notre Dame.
She likes a show—but it must be unique.
I guess that's all—go in and play the game.

When you get fired she changes like the weather!
Come over and we'll have a laugh together!

BIG RACKETEERING ON ENRIGHT SCREEN

By KAYE GODARD

Irene Rich goes in for racketeering in a big way in the Enright this week in the picture, "On Your Back." It's a well-acted film, wherein a woman's efforts to capture her man from the East Side of New York are told in fascinating and big profile.

After a few years of struggle with a little advancement, she is shown the easiest way to more money. Whereupon she follows the well-meant advice and makes something of herself. Once or twice she bungles, but the good sportsmanship she has learned during her career carries her through and the picture ends with wedding bells in the offing. H. B. Warner and Raymond Hackett are also prominently featured in the production.

GREETING TO SCHOOL

Dick Powell's greeting to September and the return to the pursuit of higher education is voiced in the stage show, "College Capers." It's a lively entertainment and the Enright Rockettes turn themselves into active and enthusiastic Betty Co-eds.

The team Clifford and Marion affords much amusement and Byron and Byron do some well-timed tap dancing all up and down the stage.

OPERA ON ORGAN

Johnnie Mitchell begins his organlogue with grand opera, Pagliacci, no less. Then he goes to more popular tunes of the day and ends with "Let the Rest of the World Go By." It's an odd combination but unusual.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's question: Statistics have been compiled which state that every day a boy spends in school will later be worth $25 to him in increased earnings. Does your experience and observation bear out this conclusion?

Joe Wehrhaim

JOE WEHRHAIM, clerk, East End: In a way it does, but I think that the business experience a young man gets who starts in to work without spending a lot of time in school is of the greatest value to him.

Miss Warren

MISS LUCILE WARREN, saleswoman, East End: Not necessarily. Getting the swing of business ways counts a lot toward increased earnings, and people get that by actual experience.

Harry Staats

HARRY STAATS, florist, Mt. Washington: I think that more education increases a person's outlook on life, and that is also an important factor in making any kind of a success out of a business.

Joseph Tracht

JOSEPH TRACHT, student, Squirrel Hill: I agree. The person who finishes his schooling is far ahead of the person who is not so well educated. His earning ability is much greater.

Miss Saul

MISS THERESA SAUL, stenographer, Squirrel Hill: More people should realize the truth of that statement and spend as much time as possible getting an education. I think $25 is a low figure; there it's really worth much more.

Joseph Bernbach

JOSEPH BERNBACH, shop manager, Pittsburgh: The amount of money is greatly exaggerated. Education is, of course, a wonderful thing, but more time than is necessary is spent in school. A man gets poise and experience and a business sense by his business experiences, and not until he starts in business.

Dexter Questions Alphonse About His Wife

CHAPTER XLVI.

Dexter looked at Raquel without seeing her. His chin hung loosely. His sullen eyes had gazed upon an apparition that, for the moment, shut out the reality of office partitions.

"You came over on the ship with Edith—with Mrs. Dexter," he demanded rather than asked Alphonse. "I saw your name on the passenger list."

Yes," Alphonse appeared to [illegible] Dexter's manner a little [illegible]

[illegible] And you love life to drink [illegible] youth.

He was still fuming over the night at the Chateau Madrid with Bertie Adams. Over his failure to bend her to his will.

I like living if that is what you mean," she said lightly.

One does not gulp good wine. One sips it, inhales it for its rare bouquet.

I am not yet a judge of good wine, Monsieur," Raquel laughed. But I shall take your advice and be looking always for the rare bouquet."

He had played directly into her hands. Had enabled her to let him known that she would become her own judge of bouquets. That she would learn life's flavors through sipping of them. And base her preferences on experience.

Walks in Dream

Of the opera, the passion of the human heart in song, she quaffed deep. She could never, she felt, drink enough of it. She wanted to bathe in it. To go on letting it flow through her in a kind of exquisite hurt. To lift her arms to cry out with the joy of it. Her eyes wet with the infinite pain of it.

Will we come again?" she asked Alphonse in a small hushed voice when they joined the eddies and swirls of the human lake that gushed down the noble flight of steps and overflowed into the square in front of the majestic facade of the Opera.

As often as you wish," Alphonse assured her.

She gave his arm a grateful little squeeze.

Then I must work very hard and try to please you always," she said in a rush of gratitude.

He patted her hand as a father might have done. And felt, in the leap of the pulse at his wrists and against the immaculate white collar beneath his rigidly held jaws, like anyone except a father.

They had supper at a place called The Ambassadeurs in a park.

Raquel walked as one in a dream. The spell of the music was still upon her.

Raquel Tired

She wished these people would not be so strident in their frivolity. They laughed too much and too loudly. Their movements were too feverish. There was too much color, too much froth, there were too many jewels.

And music! Did they call this music? Thumping and whining and wailing and clashing. A medley of frightful noises, each noise striving to drown out the other. To pick and rasp along the nerve wires more ruthlessly than its rival.

Jazz! This was not music. It was pandemonium. Punishment.

She danced with Alphonse. Her feet dragged. They were in revolt against the rhythm she ordered them to follow. She had never made such a failure of an attempt to translate rhythm into motion.

You are tired," Alphonse was at once solicitous.

No." Tired, with the memory of that flood of song purling through her senses? I can never be tired again."

I understand," said Alphonse kindly. The opera would affect you that way. It did me. For a long time. It could again."

She did not hear him. Until he was saying, with a little twinkle of pride and amusement, The eyes—they follow you. Already you are a sensation."

RETAIL TRADE ACTIVITY GAINS

Demand for Automobiles Quiet; Slight Increase In Soft Coal Output

A slight improvement in retail trade is noted with the opening of schools and the approach of fall, although warm weather continues to retard buying of fall wearing apparel, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Business as a whole, while [illegible] lower in volume than a year ago and orders [illegible] buying still comparatively light. There is a moderate movement of hosiery and women's wearing apparel and dry goods with demand for shoes slightly better, although unfilled orders are light and prices show a downward tendency. Hides are lower with the movement of leather slow and prices easy.

The demand for automobiles continues quiet with a large stock of used cars on the market. There is a fair demand for automobile accessories. Lumber, brick and other building materials continue to move slowly and construction work is light except for public work of various kinds which continues quite active. Groceries and provisions are in moderate demand with a fairly good sale of canned goods noted. Manufacturers of confectionery report trade quieter than usual for this season of the year.

There is comparatively little change in the demand for electrical equipment, although electric refrigerators and radio equipment continue to move in fairly good volume. Sanitary and heating equipment continues to move slowly in comparison with previous years. There is little change in the production of crude oil with prices holding steady.

A slight increase in the production of bituminous coal was reported last week but the tonnage is still lower than a year ago and demand from industrial sources continues unusually light.

Little improvement is noted in the collection situation, with the average considerably lower than a year ago.

CLARK COVERS FIRST HALF DIVIDEND

Company Will Earn Year's Requirement Comfortably Based on Present Results

D. I. Clark Company earned its dividend requirements by a substantial margin in the first half of 1930. Sales and earnings for the six months were only slightly behind those of the corresponding period of last year. The company has fared better than most of its principal competitors in the candy business.

While Clark publishes its earnings only once a year, it is understood that net after all charges for the first six months of 1930 was only $80,000 under the same months of 1929. The last half of the year is a more active period due to holiday business.

$2.32 LAST YEAR

Officials expect the volume and profits to be well maintained since past conditions in general business ordinarily do not materially affect the demand for the types of candy produced by Clark.

In the full year of 1929 Clark reported net profit of $695,337 or $2.32 a share on 300,000 shares of stock. Assuming that earnings for the second half will fall below last year to the same extent as in the first half, net will be about $535,000 or $1.78 a share for 1930. This would leave a good margin over dividends of $1.25 a share annually.

CASH POSITION GOOD

Cash position is strong. The company has been able to retire $217,000 of the original issue of $1,170,000 of first sinking fund 6 per cent. bonds offered in January, 1929. This leaves only $953,000 of funded debt outstanding. Further retirements may be made this year.

The D. I. Clark Company manufactures and sells Clark Bars and other candy products in most parts of the United States.

WINDOW GLASS DEMAND GAINS

Some slight improvement is to be noted in the demand for window glass with the week just ended furnishing the first real evidence of the opening up of fall demand, according to American Glass Review. Orders are reported in some better volume while the week witnessed a sizeable increase in inquiries. Even though far from appreciable, the increased activity shown lends encouragement to the situation. Especially is this true in view of the sub-normal activity for many weeks past in this branch.

Conditions in the plate glass market changed comparatively little during the week. Indications are for a gradual improvement in demand for this product throughout the balance of the month, however.

Forbes Bank Names Assistant Cashiers

Miss N. C. Fitzpatrick and J. Nevin Garber have been appointed assistant cashiers of the Forbes National Bank, Oakland, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Nevin has been with the Forbes bank since its organization in 1929, prior to which he was with the Mellon National. Mr. Nevin, a graduate of University of Pittsburgh School of Finance, has been with the institution about a year.

Imports of Wheat By Italy Higher

ROME, Sept. 6 — The director of general customs announced in an official report that Italy imported 1,211,947 hundredweight of wheat during August, 1930, as compared with 452,863 hundredweight in August of last year.

Imports from July 1 to August 31, 1930, totaled 2,581,284 hundredweight, against 2,244,417 in the corresponding period of 1929.

Surplus Freight Cars Show Decline

Class I railroads on August 14 had 438,710 surplus freight cars in good repair and immediately available for service, the car service division of the American Railway Association reports.

This was a decrease of 8,511 cars compared with August 7, at which time there were 447,221 cars.

Surplus coal cars on August 14 totaled 158,455 cars, a decrease of 3,916 cars within approximately a week, while surplus box cars totaled 225,357 cars, a decrease of 3,809 cars for the same period.

Reports also showed 25,422 surplus stock cars, a decrease of 1,629 cars below the number reported on August 7, while surplus refrigerator cars totaled 13,184 cars, an increase of 76 for the same period.

Deciduous Fruit Complaint Filed

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 — A complaint charging that freight rates on fresh deciduous fruits from points of origin in California to South Dakota destinations are unreasonable and excessive was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission by the South Dakota Board of Railroad Commissioners.

It asked the commission to order the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and other railroads to put into effect lower and "reasonable" rates.

Position Bettered By Oil Industry

The statistical position of the oil industry, for the moment at least, is in the most healthy state attained this year, a current survey by Standard Statistics Company says. Production of crude is currently at the lowest point reached since 1928, and with proration in all active territories throughout the country, stocks of crude petroleum are being moderately reduced.

SCOTT-JONES TERRITORY EXPANDS

Company Increases Field To Include Metropolitan Area; Growth in 5 Years.

The Scott-Jones Mortgage Company, local lending correspondent of the Prudential Insurance Company of America, has extended its lending territory from the greater city district to the Pittsburgh metropolitan area, including McKeesport, Homestead, Duquesne, Butler, New Castle, Sharon, Brackenridge, Arnold, New Kensington, Tarentum, Parnassus, Oakmont and Harrison Township.

ORGANIZED IN 1925

The company was organized in 1925 by John H. Scott, local attorney, and Frederic S. Jones, former vice president and general counsel of the Southern Bond and Mortgage Company of Richmond, Va. The company's operations are concentrated on the handling of straight and monthly-payment mortgages, the latter plan patterned somewhat after the building and loan association method except that the monthly payments are diminished as the principal amount of the mortgage is automatically reduced.

FIVE YEARS' RESULTS

In the five years of its existence the company has invested approximately $27,000,000 in first mortgages in the Greater Pittsburgh district, and is expected to increase this total to $30,000,000 by the end of the current year.

EXPECTS BONDS TO PICK UP

Confidence that an excellent bond market may be expected this fall is expressed in the monthly investment review of Lawrence Stern & Co., investment bankers, of Chicago and New York, which stated that there are definite indications that a strong bond market is in the making.

The review's conclusion was based upon reports from leading investment dealers throughout the country, who by a large majority agree that improved conditions in the bond market are now definitely in sight.

Stock market indications according to the review, are not so clear as in the bond field. However, it is stated that the restricted volume of new offerings, combined with a small volume of trading, has created a technical situation where any definite upturn in general business conditions should be quickly reflected in stock prices.

OIL OUTPUT INCREASES

OIL CITY, Pa., Sept. 6 — Increased oil production of wells just drilled in is reported in district east of the Rockies for August by the Oil City Derrick.

Completed wells, 1,888, represent increase of 93, and initial production is 1,146,527 barrels, increase of 284,576 over July.

Dry wells total 660, increase 110; gassers 296, gain 56.

Fewer wells are being drilled however, 809 rigs up compared to 881 in July, 3,000 wells drilling, loss of 558, or a total of 3,809 compared to 4,439 previous month, decrease of 630.

STEEL OUTPUT SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Strong Buying Required To Confirm Forecast Of Autumnal Upswing

By B. E. V. LUTY

Favorable news is a slight increase in steel production from the low point, which appears to have been in the week ended August 16. The increase in tonnage may possibly be as much as 5 per cent. Freight car loadings in the last two weeks reported on (through August 23 show a rise in exact keeping with seasonal precedent. Previously they had been falling farther and farther below the average seasonal line, while during the two weeks the gap was not widened farther.

Some economists and other observers of general business conditions have had to take back various predictions because of the time of their fulfillment having been passed. To date it is not so with the steel trade. When the market became quite dull during June it was said that this was regular summer dullness coming a little ahead of the usual time and admitted) more pronounced. Improvement was predicted for after September 1, marking the grand end of the holiday season. It would require a fortnight at least for consumers to formulate plans and express them in orders. The predictions, which were widespread and rather confidently expressed, will have to be verified by a substantial and plainly visible increase in steel buying within the next two weeks. Otherwise they can be regarded as having failed. Any later improvement would be merely a flash as declining demand late in the year is the regular thing.

COMPARATIVE DATA

The Iron Age blast furnace report makes an unfavorable showing the average daily rate of pig iron production in August being given at 81,500 tons. Estimating steel ingot production to have averaged 56 per cent, the same as officially reported for July, and translating both into annual rates there is 25,350,000 tons for pig iron and 35,300,000 tons for steel ingots. The pig iron rate is 72 per cent of the steel ingot rate, while last year it was 78 per cent, in 1927 83½ per cent and in 1926 84 per cent. The decadence in the proportion suggests a greater decline in iron and steel foundry operations than in steel ingot production but also it throws doubt upon the notion that steel companies maintain their pig iron production better than their steel production on account of the necessity of keeping by-product coke ovens in operation since they suffer greatly if allowed to grow cold.

WIDE DEMAND NEED

Improvement in steel demand in the next few weeks must come from a wide variety of consumers as there is no individual line that can be expected to gain materially, with the possible exception of the agricultural implement industry and it would not count for a great deal in proportion to total steel tonnage. The structural fabricating industry has been doing very well right along and fully as well recently as early in the year, but in such circumstances it cannot do materially better.

Production of line pipe has been at capacity for several months and can do better only as there are slight increases in capacity. Producers are sold for an average of about 60 days, in 8 or 10-inch and larger sizes. There are many large projects on foot. There is danger of demand falling off for the winter, but some authorities maintain that with the modern ditch digging machines line pipe can readily be laid in winter. Producers might offer a price inducement. The automobile industry promises no favorable turn and farmer buying power is at least somewhat impaired. There remain many classes of consumers who may buy more steel than in the last three months.

EXAMINING THE LATEST FOR MODERN HOMES ON EXHIBIT AT ARCHITECTS' AND BUILDERS' EXCHANGE, SEVENTH AVENUE

GENERAL TRADE LOWER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Commercial transactions during the week ended August 30, 1930, as measured by bank debits outside New York City, declined from both the preceding week and the corresponding period in 1929.

Wholesale prices, as measured by Fisher's index, registered an increase of 1 per cent over a week ago, but 14 per cent lower than the period ended August 31, 1929. Prices for iron and steel showed but a fractional change from the last reported week and were 16 per cent lower than a year ago. The wholesale price of middling cotton at New York increased slightly over last week, but was still well below the level of a year ago.

Bank loans and discounts remained unchanged from the preceding week and were slightly lower than in 1929. Average prices for representative stocks moving upward showed a gain of 2 per cent over the previous week. Bond prices showing greater strength were higher than both the preceding period and the corresponding week in 1929. Interest rates for call money were lower than both comparative periods. Time money rates, although showing no change from a week ago, were noticeably lower than the same period in 1929. The number of business failures were more numerous during the week ended August 31 than during the preceding period.

For the period ending August 23, 1930, increases occurred in the activity of steel mills, the output of bituminous coal, the production of crude petroleum and the value of building contracts awarded, while the receipts of cotton and the price of red wheat at Kansas City declined.

Motorist Caught After Collision

ROCHESTER, Pa., Sept. 6.—J. F. Richards, 28, Conway, who police charged attempted to escape after his automobile had collided with another car in which three persons were injured, is held for a hearing on charges of failure to stop and driving while intoxicated.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Butiller and Mrs. Joseph Joyce, all of Rochester, received cuts and bruises. Charles Jamison, another motorist, chased Richards after the crash and turned him over to Chief of Police Robert Compton, the officer reported.

Record Size Steel Girder Put in Bridge

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The largest steel girder ever manufactured by the Bethlehem Steel Company was shipped from Steelton, Pa., and put in place on the bridge now being constructed over the Reading Railroad at Olney street.

The girder weighs 160 tons, is 132 feet long, 13 inches thick and 12 feet high.

Use of Gasoline Greater in June

June gasoline consumption in 44 states, as reported by dealers and wholesalers in states under provisions of gasoline tax laws, averaged 33,331,000 gallons daily, increase 6.4 per cent over consumption of June year ago.

Former Moon Car Officials Are Sued

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Three suits totaling $536,470 have been filed in Federal Court here against former officers of Moon Motor Car Company, by the new management, which recently secured control.

September Business Data Will Disclose Trend

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—The opinion that business leaders will have to wait until September statistics are available before they will have an adequate indication of what the future has in store, was expressed by Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of commerce.

Dr. Klein said August statistics were of little value in indicating a trend of business conditions because a seasonal decline usually existed in that month due to vacations and hot weather inactivity.

"Hot air, either oratorically or climatically, is not conducive to clear thinking," he added with a smile.

The assistant secretary explained that cooler weather usually set in during September, that vacations were about over and that business usually began to recover from summer sluggishness.

Another point he emphasized was that it is unfair to compare 1930 business conditions with 1929. He said conditions last year were abnormally good and the fact that production and sales this year did not measure up to 1929 figures did not necessarily mean they were depressed.

Dr. Klein said it would be better to compare this year's figures with 1927 or, better still, with 1923-25, which usually are considered as 100 in index figures. That would give a more accurate picture of present conditions, he added, than a comparison with an abnormally prosperous period like 1929.

France Buying More Tobacco

LEAF TOBACCO EXPORTS of the United States to France increased 100 per cent during the first six months of this year as compared with the same period last year.

The comparative figures were announced by the Comm. Dpartmnt as 52,000,000 and 26,000,000 pounds.

France is one of the most important European buyers of American leaf tobacco and consumes annually from four to six per cent of this country's exports.

Dark fibered types of Kentucky and Tennessee accounted for more than 37,000,000 pounds the first half of this year, which was more than double the amount of that type purchased during the full years of 1928 and 1929.

At the same time the Commerce Department reported cigarette consumption in 1929 advanced to 15,935,358 pounds from 13,285,859 for 1928.

This increase was more than sufficient to make up for a general decline in the use of other forms of tobacco. Consumption of all classes of tobacco products increase 4 per cent from 116,714,740 pounds in 1928 to 122,111,260 in 1929.

Over-Sea Tele Showing Gains

RAPID INCREASE in the number of trans-Atlantic telephone conversations between England and the United States is reported by the Commerce Department.

The latest British statistics received by the department show the number of calls between England and the United States was 546 in April, 676 in May and 641 in June. The average chargeable duration of the calls was six and one-half minutes.

The total for all British outgoing and incoming international telephone calls during 1929 was 1,098,981 compared with 887,290 for 1928. Maximum calls for one day during 1929 numbered 140 of which 81 were to the United States and 59 from that country.

British authorities report that communication has been established with 90 per cent of the telephone using peoples of the world.

Domestic Sales Of Meat Decline

July sales to domestic and foreign customers by representative meat packing companies were 6 per cent below June and 20 per cent less than a year ago. Decrease from 1929 is the largest recorded thus far in the current year. Production of slaughtering establishments declined 3 per cent from June and was 7 per cent less than in the 1929 month.

SERVICE FIRM'S BUSINESS UP

Officials of Exhibitors Service Company, Forbes street, state that volume of firm's business has increased to such proportions as to necessitate addition of 10 new International trucks to the already large fleet of 63 vehicles, ranging in size from one-half to three tons capacity.

At present the company's business is at peak. Exhibitors Service Company delivers moving picture films to 300 theaters within a radius of 100 miles of Pittsburgh. It is also the local distributing representative for 12 magazine publishers, two Pittsburgh daily newspapers and a large yeast manufacturing concern.

Officials of Exhibitors Service Company claim a high record for efficiency in that the concern has not failed in its 15 years of existence to make a delivery of goods on scheduled time.

N. Y. Central's Car Loadings Increase

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Cars loaded at stations and received from connections by New York Centrail Railroad for fourth week of August totaled 142,439, against 141,826 in the third week of August, 117,689 in the same week in 1929 and 169,196 in 1928.

LOCAL EXHIBIT HELPS HOME PLANNERS

Architects and Builders Display Imparts Ideas To Many Home Owners

The Architects and Builders' Exhibit, 514 Seventh avenue, is rendering the people of Pittsburgh a valuable service. The service was installed for the purpose of giving ideas about building and architecture, free of charge, to people who are planning to build their own home.

At the architects and builders exhibit may be found floor space devoted to displays of various building materials and household appliances. Guides who will explain the various exhibits, give ideas of types of construction and give literature about any product which may prove of interest.

FREE TO PUBLIC

The exhibit has been open since January of last year and many visitors have made their selections of materials and appliances from an inspection of the exhibits on the floor. Every family hopes to have a home and careful planning of that home always brings a satisfactory reward. And here under one roof are all the new ideas, materials and appliances.

The exhibit is free to the public during ordinary business hours. The local exhibit is one of 20 of its kind in the United States and each week sees something new and different in modern construction. Anyone contemplating building or remodeling can make very profitable use of the exhibit.

Utility Acquires Kansas Telephone

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Mid-West States Utilities Company has acquired the entire outstanding common stock of the Kansas Telephone Company, one of the most important systems in the state, serving 23 counties in the Eastern and Central sections. The Mid-West States Company made the acquisition on exceptionally favorable terms according to an announcement by Lon J. Jester, vice president. It has arranged to meet all the Kansas Company's interest requirements on funded debt and has offered its own obligations for notes of the Kansas Company which have matured.

Copper Firms Expected To Follow Kennecott Dividend Action

"The Street takes it for granted that the declaration of Kennecott's dividend will be followed by similar action by other copper companies. Kennecott has had a low cost product and cannot afford to make a cash payment unless other copper companies do likewise. The big problem of the copper companies is to make a profit at the present price of copper.

W. I. Ross president of the Nickel Plate road believes the recovery in business when it comes will be attended by an improvement so gradual as to be hardly noticeable at first. Mr. Ross says: 'I believe that the pick up will start with one industry or group of industries, and gradually extend itself to another until by degrees it is spread out pretty generally. I am not entertaining any notion that we are going to wake up some morning and find that activity has been restored over night.'"

Covering as they do the end of the month and the usual but generally temporary demands on the credit market this week's Federal Reserve condition statements show the first upturn in the total of reserve credit outstanding in several weeks. The expansion is not large and incidentally is brought about chiefly by the increase of New York banks to the reserve in New York for accommodation. An increase of $28 000 000 in holdings of rediscounted bills is reported by the system. $12 000 000 of the total having been contributed by advances made by the New York bank. Repayment of New York banks to the reserve was probably made necessary by the slow return to those institutions of funds withdrawn to cover holiday needs. The consolidated statement shows holdings of open market bills up about $7 000 000 and also a nominal increase in the total of government securities. An increase of $37 000 000 in other forms of reserve credit brought the expansion in the total outstanding to $357 000 000.

Wall Street believes that important developments are close at hand in the affairs of Loew's, Inc. The company's report for the fiscal year ended August 31, last, is expected to be out soon showing net equal to around $10 a share. An effort is afoot, so the story goes, to have the board increase the dividend rate. New interests who recently took hold of the Fox situation are understood to be back of this move. Believing it justified by earnings and financial position. At the same time the above mentioned interests are reputedly negotiating for a consolidation of Loews and Fox, the deal to be arranged through an offering of exchange to minority holders in Loew's.

The speculative community was not disposed to attach much significance to the $8 000 000 increase in collateral borrowings revealed in the weekly federal reserve report on brokers' loans. The expansion was looked upon as much too small to indicate any important change in the position of the market. Still it was interesting to note that the increase for last week represented the first upturn reported in a period of six weeks, the last previous expansion amounting roughly to $2 000 000 having been recorded in the week ended July 23 last. The present total is but $701 404 000 of the minimum figure on loans reported by the reserve at $2 408 596 000 on May 26 1926, much the same as the current stock exchange total is within $831 233 000 of the 1926 low of $2 767 400 000 reported by that institution at the end of May that year.

Much is heard of the ize of the short interest involved in the market these days and from the status of the situation as the stock loan market one might judge it to be very substantial. At the closing Thursday it was reported that of a total of 400 stocks in demand in the loan crowd no less than 176 issues were lending "flat" or, in other words without interest to the borrower. Another 170 were lending at 1 per cent and the balance at 2 per cent or even with the call money rate. Practically all the active railway issues were reputedly lending "flat." Thus, unless the borrowing demand for stock is of misleading character possibly to cover "hedges" or to facilitate liquidation, it appears there is sufficient short interest to provide the basis for a smart upturn if anything favorable develops to throw a scare into the bear crowd.

Etna Man Named Court Stenographer

George M. McCaffrey of Etna today was named official court stenographer by the judges of Common Pleas court to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Edward J. Donnelly of Bellevue, who had filled that post for many years.

George D. Hahn of 2645 Ellis street, North Side, a clerk in the district attorney's office, was named to take McCaffrey's former place.

Busy Old Shipping Port Breaks Record

PORTSMOUTH, N. H. (AP)—Despite the fact that this port was rather busy in the days of wooden ships and iron men, the business of the fiscal year ending June 30, broke all records for that period, according to figures just made available by the Customs office. The importations directed to this port amounted to $365,519 and foreign goods in bond from other ports amounted to $616,519.

France Has Lowest Jobless in Europe

PARIS (INS)—Paris now has the smallest number of unemployed men in all the countries of Europe. While England puts on record 2,000,000 without work and Germany 1,800,000, France counts no more than five or six thousand men with their arms crossed, according to the latest statistics.

Liners Crash in Port, One Loses Anchor

HAVANA, Sept. 6. (AP)—The steamer Cuba of the French Line collided with the Panama-Pacific liner Virginia while docking here yesterday. Neither ship was seriously damaged. The Cuba lost her anchor and part of the chain while the Virginia received slight damage to her stern.

Stocks Firm — Local Stocks Irregular

STOCK MARKET STARTS DAY FIRM

Upward Movement Begun In Previous Session Continued—Many Gain

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The stock market opened firm today, as yesterday's upward movement was pressed further. American Tobacco B gained 1½ and U. S. Steel, Sears-Roebuck, American Can, Atchison, General Electric, American Smelting, Radio Keith and National Cash Register opened about ½ point higher. Southern Railway however, lost ⅜, and Union Carbide slipped off ⅝.

The market made moderate upward progress during the first half hour, but at the end of that period some week-end selling appeared and the list began to waver. The weekly mercantile reviews reported better wholesale buying and speculative sentiment retained the more cheerful attitude noted yesterday, although there was still an inclination to proceed cautiously.

United States Steel rose a point in fairly active trading, one block of 6,000 shares changing hands, but later lost its gain. Other shares selling up a point or more included Bethlehem Steel, Montgomery Ward, Woolworth, Westinghouse Electric, American Power and Light, Lambert, American Can, Allis Chalmers and Pan American B. United States Industrial Alcohol rose more than 3, and Diamond Match, a volatile issue, shot up more than 5 to a new high.

There were a few isolated soft spots. Gillette and Electric Auto Lite lost about 2 points.

Foreign exchanges were again under pressure. Sterling cables opened at $4.86 3-32, off 3-32, and the lowest in several weeks.

MORROW SILENT ON WARD DEAL

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—George K. Morrow, chairman of the board of Gold Dust Corporation and an important figure in many other enterprises, refused to comment on reports in Wall Street that he and his associates may take an active part in the management of the Ward Baking Corporation.

Note Increase in Stocks of Zinc

Stocks of zinc on hand September 1 totaled 122,635 short tons, against 117,381 on August 1 and 49,064 on September 1, 1929, according to American Zinc Institute, Inc.

Production in August was 41,029 tons as against 40,003 in July and 55,708 in August, 1929.

Shipments during the month were 35,776 tons against 32,235 in July and 51,980 in August, 1929.

Equipment Orders For August Gain

During August 823 freight cars were ordered from domestic makers, against 1,306 in July and 2,562 in August last year, Railway Age reports. Thirty-four locomotives were ordered last month against two in July and 31 in August last year. Passenger car orders last month were 13, against 32 in July and 131 in August of 1929.

Changes Approved By Phila. Company

Philadelphia Company stockholders, at a special meeting, authorized the issuance of $10,000,000 of $6 cumulative preference stock; change of the common stock from $50 per share to no par, and conversion of the 5 per cent preferred and the common stock on a basis of five shares for one.

Pressed Steel Gets Mexican Car Order

Pressed Steel Car Company has received an order from Mexican Railways for 85 box cars, 15 automobile cars and 15 flats. New York Central Railroad has ordered 50 milk cars from Merchants Despatch.

Best & Company August Sales Up

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Best & Co. August sales were $639,252, an increase of $47,060 over August, 1929. For seven months sales aggregated $8,037,321, an increase of $530,472.

TRIPLE CRASH INJURES THREE

Three persons were slightly injured in a triple collision of automobiles in Bigelow boulevard near Herron avenue this morning. They were treated at the West Penn Hospital. According to police the injured were Louis Martin, a Negro of 23 Wooster street; Henry Schneider, 25, of 525 Climax street, and Miss Agnes McGuire, 23, of 506 Etna street.

The accident is said to have occurred when Louis Davis, a Negro of 2130 Helman street, driver of the car in which Martin was riding, attempted to pass Schneider's machine while both were traveling toward the East End. Davis' car struck Schneider's and then shot across the roadway, striking the machine of Thomas Collinger, 24, of 4710 Lorigan street. Miss McGuire was riding with Collinger. Schneider and Davis were arrested, charged with reckless driving.

Joseph Russan, of 2324 Almore street, was injured seriously when his car collided with another in the Perry highway near Zeiglerville late yesterday. He suffered a fractured skull and was removed to a hospital at Ellwood City. A woman riding in Russan's car was reported injured and was thought to have been brought to Pittsburgh by a passing motorist. James Costello, 4016 Liberty avenue, driver of the other car was cut and bruised.

VOTERS TO GET INSTRUCTIONS

The Board of Registration Commissioners today is completing plans for using the $7,500 appropriated by the county commissioners to educate voters in how to register, vote and find polling places that were changed when the city was redistricted.

Tabulation of returns from Thursday's registration showed that only 71 Pittsburgh districts out of 450 had been reported by registrars sitting at the polling places. Estimates based on available returns indicated that the registration for the first day would be about 19,000 or about 5,000 less than estimates made Thursday night.

The registration commissioners intend to use the $7,500 fund in mailing to every voting taxable a pamphlet containing a citizens' appeal for residents to register and vote as a patriotic duty to their city, state and nation.

The pamphlet also will show the lines of the particular election district, as changed by the redistricting commission, and the location of all polling places in the ward.

The commissioners stated that the pamphlets would be mailed to approximately 250,000 residents who have been assessed for voting but have not paid the poll tax.

ALUMINUM FUEL TANKS TESTED

A large number of sales and transportation officials of refining companies journeyed to the New Kensington plant of the Aluminum Company of America yesterday to witness a demonstration of the utilization of aluminum tanks in place of steel containers for transportation of gasoline. The tanks were viewed with regard to their non-susceptibility of explosion, and durability against breaking.

Three demonstrations were made, revealing the strength of the new container in sustaining shock, resisting pressure and withstanding fire without exploding. The demonstrations were made at the request of the National Fire Protective Association.

In one test two tanks were filled with gasoline and tossed into a fire. The flames melted safety jets which permitted the contents to escape. The gasoline burned as it poured out. The tanks withstood the heat, which reached 805 degrees.

3 Children Victims Of Serious Mishaps

Three children were in the McKeesport Hospital today, victims of accidents.

While playing football at the municipal playgrounds in Clairton, Joseph Papepinto, 13, of 546 Miller avenue, Clairton, suffered a left leg fracture. It was the first football accident of the season.

Struck by an automobile at Ninth street in Elizabeth, Frances Bonno, 7, of Blaine Hill, Elizabeth, suffered skull fracture.

Slip Kills Diver In St. Clair Lake

Slipping from a diving board at Paris Lake in Upper St. Clair Township early today, Victor Crawford, 25, of R. D. No. 2, struck his head on the concrete pool and was injured fatally, said a report to the coroner. Other bathers dragged Crawford from the lake immediately. He died within a few minutes of a skull fracture, the report indicated.

Asks Planes to Hunt Missing Dry Agent

RATON, N. M., Sept. 6.—(AP)—C. E. Stearns, federal prohibition director for New Mexico, last night requested airplanes from John F. Vivian, district director at Denver, to assist in a search for Ray Sutton, dry agent of Clayton, missing since August 28.

Sutton had been engaged with several agents in probing the murder of Dale Kearney, Colorado prohibition agent, at Aguilar, Col.

Cathie Rebuffed by Maid On Arrival Home

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Catherine Paige, elder daughter in a fatherless home, secures her first position in the office of Alfred A. Farnsworth, successful engineer. She meets Gordon Moore of the firm of Moore Brothers, engaged in important construction work for Farnsworth. Cathie is instantly attracted to him, and he to her, but what seems a serious love affair to her is just a pleasant episode to him, and she soon realizes he has forgotten her. Cathie's mother falls seriously ill. To pay for hospital expenses and doctor bills she is forced to borrow heavily from Farnsworth. He is many years her senior, and completely overwhelms her when he proposes marriage with him as a way out of her financial difficulties. After a night of tears she accepts and agrees to an early marriage. Her mother believes that though Cathie does not really love Farnsworth, she respects and likes him, and hopes that this will grow into love. An expensive trousseau is purchased and Cathie leaves on her wedding trip. When she returns she is struck by the gloomy, almost sinister quality of Farnsworth's house, which is now to be her home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XII.

Mr. Farnsworth was glad to be home again. "After all, there's no place like home," he said, sinking into the big arm chair in front of the fire after he had had his tea.

Cathie stirred rather wanly. She wondered if she could ever come to think of this as home. It seemed so big, so full of dark corners, and it was so oppressively quiet. Her own voice sounded strange and loud when, she said: "Yes, isn't it?"

To cover her confusion she got up and moved around the room, examining a cerise vase, a Dresden bon-bon box, a pile of magazines in red morocco covers. She felt like a fish out of water.

It must be a very large house, she said just to be saying something.

Oh, yes. Twelve rooms. Not counting the servants' quarters.

I wonder if I'll be able to manage it, she said doubtfully. You entertain a lot, don't you?

What's that?" Mr. Farnsworth sat up sharply. The warmth of the fire after the long drive was making him nod.

Head Servant
Old Chinaman Has Charge Of Help

"I was just wondering if I'd be able to—to take care of it all for you. I'm not used to a big house, and entertaining, you know. I'm afraid I'll be very awkward."

Nonsense, my dear. Cheong takes full charge. I don't entertain much."

"Oh!"

After another pause in which her husband was visibly fighting to keep his eyes open, Cathie said, "Who's Cheong?"

"Cheong? Oh, he's the boss Chinaman. He has been with me for years. Takes care of everything. Ring the bell, will you, Cathie? I'd better introduce him."

"Tell Cheong I want to see him here," he told the young China boy who answered the ring.

He cook dinner now. I call him."

In a moment Cathie heard the shuffling of slippers on the waxed floor. A very fat, very old Chinaman in a long white apron stood bowing in the doorway.

"This is Mrs. Farnsworth, the new mistress of the house," Farnsworth said, presenting Cathie.

Shyness
Cannot Get Used to Huge House

The old Chinaman bowed again without really looking at her, but Cathie had the odd sensation that he could have described her minutely from the top of her head to the soles of her feet, that he had already satisfied his curiosity about her.

"I am your obedient servant," he said in perfect, ceremonious English.

"Now that's settled," Farnsworth said. "If you want anything all you have to do is see Cheong. He manages everything. Sit down for a few minutes and rest, child. Then I'll show you the house."

Cathie sat in her chair, turning the leaves of a magazine.

Mr. Farnsworth dozed in his.

From time to time he caught his breath in a sort of gasping snore. Cathie wiped her eyes stealthily. She thought: "I'm tired, that's what's the matter with me. If I could get a bath and get dressed I'd be all right."

She looked around the room for the bell, but didn't see it. An agony of shyness came over her. She COULDN'T get used to this . . . she'd NEVER be able to feel that she belonged . . .

A clock in the hall struck five. This was perfect nonsense. Once she'd had a bath and unpacked she'd be all right . . .

She got up and wandered out into the hall. Doors were open, disclosing vistas of other large, dim rooms. Feeling like an overbold guest she began to ascend the beautiful winding stairway that led to her second floor. Nothing to stop her from going up . . . it was going to be her home, wasn't it?

Shown to Room
Cathie Is Amazed at Size of It

Another large, square hall upstairs. More doors, some of them open, some closed. Vistas of more large, dim rooms. While she stood hesitating, wondering if she dared ring for someone, or if she ought to return to the drawing room and wait for her husband, one of the closed doors opened, and the woman, Marguerite, came out, her arms heaped high with snowy towels.

Cathie opened her mouth to speak. The woman gave her a contemptuous stare and turned on her heel. In a moment Cathie heard the click of her high heels on the uncarpeted steps that led to the third floor.

You like room now? You follow me please. It was the boy, Charlie . . . or was it another one? Cathie couldn't be sure, but his pleasant smile after the woman's baleful glare was heartening. She followed him to a suite of rooms overlooking a garden and the roof of the sun porch below.

When he had gone she shut the door and looked around quickly. Heavens, what a room! Almost as big as the whole house on Clara street. All silver and turquoise with modern furniture made out of some silvery-grey wood. The bathroom alone was as large as the biggest bedroom at home, and oh, the fat cakes of English soap and the be-ribboned jar of jasmine bath crystals!

Feels Better
Sense of Peace and Security Returns

Cathie began to feel better. She slipped out of her clothes and into a padded satin robe. When the bath water was turned off she could hear Mr. Farnsworth whistling as he dressed in a room diagonally across the hall from hers. She began to whistle, too. The sense of peace and security that had been hers ever since her marriage began to come back to her. She was going to be happy here. She'd make herself be happy. She wouldn't let an old house get on her nerves!

Dinner was perfect. Cathie had never tasted such food. "Cheong is probably the best chef in the country," Mr. Farnsworth said complacently, taking a second helping of chicken a la de France.

The table was exquisite. A lace and linen cover, fine as an altar cloth. Dark blue and ivory service plates, gold encrusted. Dark blue goblets. Tall ivory candles glowing in blue and crystal candelebra. Dark red velvet petalled roses massed in a silver bowl.

Cathie couldn't help thinking that it was a shame to go to so much trouble, for just the two of them. If Mr. Farnsworth didn't care about for. . . parties at least she could have the family often . . . and Addie White, and maybe Miss Darrow from the office, and even Frank Prout once or twice . . .

"Hello! Here's a letter from Chester." Mr. Farnsworth was looking over a pile of letters, and happened upon this one from his son. He slit it open eagerly, and read it to himself, a pleased, proud smile on his nice, florid face.

From Chester . . . from his son . . . He had often talked to her of his son. He was so sure they would like each other.

"You're younger than Enid, his wife," he had told her, "and twice as attractive. Oh, she's pretty enough in the conventional way. A very lovely girl, really. But she lacks your charm, my dear. Still, a nice girl. A very nice girl. You're going to be friends. I'm sure. And as for Ches and I . . . well, I suppose we'll be more like brothers than father and son now."

"What did you tell him about our marriage?" she asked, a little uneasily.

"Nothing. They're on their way back from Europe now and I have no way of getting in touch with them. Their wedding trip, too, though a more protracted one than your hard-working husband can give you. Two years! A trip around the world. It was one of my gifts . . . two years . . . dear, dear, what a lot we will have to say to each other!"

Cathie watched him reading now. She saw that the letter bore a domestic stamp. She supposed that meant they were on the way to San Francisco.

Mr. Farnsworth folded the letter and returned it to its envelope.

He looked up at her, the pleased, proud smile still on his face.

"They ought to be here any day now."

"That's fine," Cathie said, rather weakly.

"Yes, they'll be here any day . . . any day now. Tell Cheong to see to the suite on the north side, will you?"

"They . . . they're going to live with us?" There was no helping it. Cathie couldn't keep the quiver out of her voice.

BRIDE IN BRIEF ROMANCE SUES

Lela Myrtle Mough, 186 Ralph avenue, Bellevue, a bride of a few months when her husband, Paul Arlie Mough, left her, has filed a libel in divorce, charging desertion. Their marital life lasted from February 2, 1928, to August 31, it is said, never.

Irene D. Evans, 912 North Lincoln street, North Side, is seeking a divorce from William Evans, alleging desertion.

Edna N. Lytle, 357 South Winebiddle street, charges G. Heber Lytle, Dunlap way, with cruel and barbarous treatment and indignities in her divorce action.

When she asked her husband, Harry Kitt, to go to work, he deserted her, Dinecia Kitt, 25, telephone operator for the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation, declared in asking a divorce. She lives with her parents at 1517 Fifth avenue.

Mrs. Kitt said she tired at her husband's being idle and imposing on his parents. She does not know where he is now, she said.

N. Y. POST GIVEN DR. BURGESS

The Rev. Dr. Ellis B. Burgess, for 19 years president of the Pittsburgh Synod of the United Lutheran Church, has accepted the position of missionary superintendent of the United Lutheran body of the New York metropolitan district. He will take charge in October.

Dr. Burgess became head of the Pittsburgh Synod following the merger of the general synod and general council groups. According to the ruling of the synod, its leader may not serve more than two five-year terms. Before coming to Pittsburgh, Dr. Burgess was pastor at Avonmore, Pa., and at Connellsville, Pa. In the latter place he served in Trinity Church for 25 years.

The new president of the Pittsburgh Synod, the Rev. Dr. Henry H. Bagger, formerly of First Church, Butler, Pa., will be formally inducted into office on the evening of September 16 in First Lutheran Church, Grant street.

HEALY INDICTED IN MURDER

An indictment charging murder has been returned by the grand jury of Dedham, Mass., against Thomas Healy, 18, of 518 Armandale street, North Side, who is being held in jail at Dedham in connection with the killing of a policeman at Brookline, Mass.

Authorities still are seeking Paul Hurley, whom Healy was visiting on a vacation when the shooting occurred August 2.

The Pittsburgh boy, it is said, accompanied Hurley on a holdup expedition, and when Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien, of Brookline, questioned them, a gun battle followed.

Healy told police Hurley fired the fatal shot. After the shooting both boys escaped. Healy was arrested as he arrived in New York on a bus.

The youths were classmates at a boarding school in North East, Pa., and Healy formerly attended the preparatory school at Duquesne University.

SHAKERS SHAKE FOR 84 HOURS

Joseph Cue and Charles Mathews, Elliott's team of hand shakers, were still at grips today, after more than 84 hours of continuous shaking.

The young men report themselves in good shape, but their managers have arranged a trip to the doctors some time today for an examination, just to make sure no harm is being done. If all is well, they plan to visit a Tom Thumb golf course, and perhaps play a round or two.

They are as determined as ever to keep going for 500 hours.

Rescue Ship Master Gets Official Praise

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Lieut. Comm. William Robert Meyer, U. S. N. R., master of the Matson liner Ventura, which on August 18 removed 317 passengers from the S. S. Tahiti, an hour before it sank in the South Pacific Ocean, has been awarded a letter of commendation by the Secretary of the Navy.

Obituary

Isaac Wertheimer

By LOUIS REID

Louis Reid.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The war to end war, if the field marshals of the microphone are to be believed, will be the conflict of the broadcasters over international programs.

Before a group of Canadians the other day M. Aylesworth, head man of the N. B. C., declared that war is impossible between nations that know each other and understand each other's songs.

* * *

The songs of all nations, including the Scandinavian, roll regularly out of the loudspeakers. By the M. Aylesworth's token we should love the Russians most, for Russian music, among that of all the nations, invades most often the parlors of the republic.

Tschaikowsky is the patron saint of the radio maestros, even those maestros whose gaze is most fixed upon Tin Pan Alley. And when the battered army ceases its bow to Tschaikowsky it invariably turns to the shrine of Rimsky-Korsakoff.

* * *

Scarcely at . . . ch has been necessary to discover that crooning was developed because the early radio tubes had a habit of blowing out when subjected to a high soprano shriek, that the manufacturers of patent medicines cannot buy time on the networks, that some of the best known opera singers can't crowd into the greenbacked pastures of radio because their voices do not register well on the air, that a broadcast voice will go around the world faster than a human voice will go around a block, that Reginald Werrenrath, the baritone, could get a job as a salesman if his voice failed him, that radio engineers play a game of heavenly billiards in sending programs around the world. They aim a radio wave at a theoretical ceiling and bank it so it lands in a certain area somewhere else on the globe.

Jazz Era Invades The Churches

The Jehovahs of jazz are slowly but ever so surely advancing their standards to the churches of the land. Reports continue to seep in that the saxophone has invaded this and that pulpit. The styles and showmanship of Broadway are coming to the aid of the clergy as a means of not only holding but increasing flocks. Our operatives whisper that so far pure and undefiled jazz is not on the churchly schedules. Rather symphonic arrangements of jazz highbrow jazz. Still, it is jazz whether it is played with a lifted eyebrow or a shake of the knee.

* * *

Not so many years ago Dr. Ziegfeld presented a jazz wedding on the stage where his "Follies" were current. His costly and enthusiastic clinic saw a ceremony in which the officiating clergyman was unable to control his feet any more successfully than the bride and bridegroom. Dr. Ziegfeld was ahead of his time. Today in various parts of the republic jazz bands are actually supplanting choirs as the chief musical attraction of the church.

* * *

Radio actors still resist inexplicably a temptation to spout Mark Antony's oration . . . What has become of the old-fashioned muted cornet? . . . B. A. Rolfe, the orchestra leader, spent most of his vacation at Saratoga Springs listening to an orchestra directed by Vincent Lopez. . . That heavy ocean traffic discernible to the southeast is the rush of Cuban marimba players to American microphones. . . Every variety of sport has now assailed the armchairs save that of a race between a tortoise and a hare.

Old 'Maple Leaf Rag' Seldom Heard Today

One of the most beautiful speaking voices that has reached these decrepit ears is that of Evelyn Laye, the English actress.

Though the "Maple Leaf Rag" once swept the nation—it was on the repertory of every pianist above the one-finger rank—it seldom penetrates the loudspeakers.

Were a vote to be taken of the favorite bathroom ballad of the last 20 years the count, I am convinced, would show "On the Road to Mandalay" far, far in the lead.

* * *

The rural note of the loudspeakers is growing fainter and fainter. Once it vied with the wisecracking announcer in popularity. Most of the rural programs passed into the discard with the entrance upon the ether of Phillips Lord and his down east character of Seth Parker.

Lord brought an authentic note to his bucolic broadcast similarly to the way in which Gosden and Correll gave an air of genuineness to their Negro oafs, Amos 'n' Andy. He convinced you that somewhere in Maine in a spot untouched by the hot winds of sophistication there are people like Seth Parker looking kindly at the world with the aid of a hymnal.

Brunswick Trophy For Best Program

After more than a year of intensive planning, the Brunswick Radio Corporation has announced the creation of an annual award for achievement in the radio and broadcasting fields. This award will take the form of a trophy, the Brunswick Cup, which will be presented for the first time during September, 1931. Under the terms of the award it will be presented each year "for the broadcast achievement which has, by its conception, made an outstanding and vital contribution to the life of the American people." The award may go to an individual broadcaster, to a commercial sponsor of a program, to an advertising agency or to a broadcasting station.

Lee Sims Feature Of WBBM Tonight

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—Three famous entertainers will be featured from WBBM tonight at 9 o'clock, Pittsburgh time. Lee Sims, noted pianist and composer, will play several original compositions with Leon Bloom's orchestra. Mary Williams, "queen of the blues," will sing several favorite numbers; and Axel Christenson, the "Skandinavian Philosopher," will offer some of his "axle grease for the funny bone."

FIRST WEEK BRIGHTENS PITT OUTLOOK

THE END OF the first week of practice by the University of Pittsburgh football squad at Camp Hamilton in Windber finds optimism soaring in Panther circles. It is apparent that Pitt will be strong at the ends, that possibly the backfield will be the fastest the Blue and Gold has had in many seasons, and that a smooth passing attack may be a feature of the team's work this year.

Jim MacMurdo

If big Jim MacMurdo is kept at an end post, three good men will fight it out for the other terminal position, and of the three, Rip Collins, was a regular end last season. That is an indication of the end strength. Ed Hirschberg, of East McKeesport, a reserve in 1929, and Ted Daily, a sophomore, are making a great fight to take Collins' place. Rip hasn't slowed down from last year, and is better, if anything, but the competition for the end jobs is keen. Joe Donchess, Pitt's all-America wingman of last season, is this year coaching the ends, and they are making rapid progress under his tutelage.

IF JIMMY CLARK, the 160-pound speed merchant trying for Tom Parkinson's old job, is given the fullback berth, the backfield will shape up as the fastest that has played behind a Pitt line in some time. Josh Williams is a certainty for one halfback position, but the other is wide open, with Bill Walinchus, a veteran who starred as Williams' substitute last fall, fighting to keep the assignment from going to one of a trio of sophomores—Brown, Heller and Reider. All of these men are fast.

Eddie Baker, team captain, is a fixture at quarterback, though Rocco Outri, a sophomore, is showing fine form at that position. Clark, prospective fullback, is the fastest player on the field. The Greensburg athlete is a 10-second man in the hundred. The other fullback candidates are Franklin Hood, long-distance passer, and John Luch, a sophomore. Clark performed brilliantly in his few chances last season and appears to have first call for the job.

THE ADDITION OF Andy Gustafson, former star fullback, to the Panther coaching staff this year, has brought a boom in the passing game—as a part of the Pitt attack.

Andy is in charge of the backs and is giving them long drills twice a day in passing. Already they are showing good form. Pitt hasn't had a good passing offensive since Jimmy Hagan and Gibby Welch finished.

Jimmy Clark

THE PANTHERS HAVE been favored with excellent weather in camp. The first few days wer extremely warm and just right to reduce excess poundage gathered during the vacation period, and later the weather cooled off and became ideal for harder work. On the fourth day out, Thursday, scrimmage was called, and from now on there will be lots of it. The Panthers will remain in Windber until September 19, when they will break camp in time to return to Pittsburgh and witness the game at Forbes Field that night between Duquesne and West Virginia. The Mountaineers will be Pitt's second opponents of the season.*

IF REPORTS RELATIVE to the terms of his new contract are true, John McGraw is not only more firmly established than ever as the highest salaried manager in baseball, but he has advanced to within $10,000 of the pay figures of Babe Ruth, the only man in the game who draws a larger sum for services on the field. Connie Mack has a larger income, but only because of dividends as half owner of the A's.

Though no official announcement of McGraw's salary has come from Giant headquarters, his new five-year agreement is said to call for about $70,000 per season. That means an increase of $10,000 annually, as it is understood that his old contract called for $60,000 per year—$40,000 as manager and $20,000 as vice president of the New York club.

THE FINAL THREE weeks of the National League schedule will see the Pittsburgh club departing from the custom of trying out several young players at the fag end of the race.

Outfielder Augustin Dugas, the young Canadian from the Wichita club, who is to make the Eastern trip with the team, will be the only recruit to be given a looking over by the Buc management this fall. The other acquisitions will not report until spring.

Primo Carnera

JEFF DICKSON, European fight promoter, who has just matched Primo Carnera and Paulino Uscudun for a 10-round bout to be staged in France or Spain in late October or early November, bases his expectations of a huge gate on the fact that matches between men not nearly so well known are drawing bumper crowds at fancy prices over there. Though Europe's largest boxing intake this year was registered in London, where Young Stribling and Phil Scott drew $150,000, Dickson says Paris is the best fight city on the other side. Stribling and Carnera, for example, drew close to $100,000 in Paris as against $75,000 in London.*

AMERICAN FIGHT FANS would emit a howl that could be heard around the globe if the promoters in this country dared to post any such prices as the Queensberry showmen are getting away with in Paris. When Al Brown defends the bantamweight title against Eugene Huat there on October 4, the prices will run from $1 to $16, and the show is expected to net from $55,000 to $60,000.

For his share of the proceeds, Brown is to receive $12,000. The last time he defended his crown at Ebbets Field, in Brooklyn, the prices were one, two and three, and the entire gate amounted to only $3,200. A recent Paris bout in which both principals were outsiders, Brown and an Englishman named Johnny Guthbert, drew $70,000.

ONLY LAST WEDNESDAY night the indoor boxing season was opened in the French capital with a main bout made up entirely of green talent just breaking into the professional ranks. Until a short time before the show, Dickson, in this country, had not even selected a name for a 220-pound French heavyweight he was presenting in the main event. Then he cabled his agents to bill the newcomer as "Bardos" and, if he won by a knockout, to make his first name "Carlo."

Though none of the men on the bill had ever been heard of, the

POOR DECISION TRANSFERS CROWN

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 6.—A crowd of approximately 15,000 fight fans saw the world welterweight boxing championship change ownership at League Park here last night, for the third time in less than 14 months when Referee Patsy Haley, of New York, raised aloft the gloved hand of Tommy Freeman, of Hot Springs, Ark., Erie, Pa., and Cleveland, at the finish of his 15-round battle with Young Jack Thompson, Los Angeles Negro, who was defending the laurels.

Tom Freeman

Freeman is extremely popular here and the gesture was well received by the crowd, but it was a travesty on justice.

Thompson won 10 of the 15 rounds and held his own in one other, the first, and, to boot, almost knocked out his white foe in the second round, when he deposited him on the canvas with a blazing left hook to the jaw. Thompson himself never was in danger, although he took many chances, in fact, at times being extremely careless for a champion defending such a precious bauble as a world title.

SATISFACTORY FIGHT

It was a satisfactory fight, but not a sensational one by any means. Thompson paced himself well and set himself for his punches, placing them with the skill and finesse of a sharpshooter and putting his body behind them. He had no trouble scoring at will with a left jab or hook to the head or body, and he crossed his right prettily to the jaw, and in the close-range fighting, which he welcomed, he almost tore off Freeman's head with his ceaseless barrage of right uppercuts.

Young Jack Thompson

As for Freeman, he fought like a man who knew he was losing and was just going through the motions. Slower than his foe, and even slower than that when rocked by the latter's jolting blows, his star seldom was in the ascendency. Now and then he flashed, but as often as not merely to ward off the constant battering of the champion's fists. In addition to the knockdown, he was bleeding profusely from the nose throughout the last three rounds and, for all that he appeared the more rugged in build, he was more tired than Thompson and anxious to hear the final bell.

FREEMAN SURPRISED

When Referee Haley, imported from New York for the occasion, lifted Freeman's arm aloft at the finish, Tommy appeared to be the most amazed man in the arena. He was actually dazed as he went from one side of the ring to another, seemingly scarcely able to realize his good fortune. He was called upon to speak through the radio microphones and generally hailed as the new champion, but left the ring with little change in his expression. Over in the opposite corner, Thompson sat disconsolate, but both he and his manager, Ray Alvis, shook hands with

POLO SERIES OPENS TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—For the tenth time since 1886, Great Britain and the United States will send their foremost riders galloping into action today for the International Cup, emblem of polo supremacy and one of the world's classic trophies of sport.

America—Eric Pedley of California, No. 1; Earle A. S. Hopping of New York, No. 2; Capt. Thomas Hitchcock, Jr. of New York, No. 3; Frederick Winston Churchill Guest, of New York, back.

Great Britain—Gerald Balding, No. 1; Lewis L. Lacey, No. 2; Capt. C. T. I. (Pat) Roark, No. 3; Lieut. Humphrey Guinness, back.

These selections came as no surprise, but confirmed the belief that the 22-year-old Hopping, youngest member of the American team, had won the No. 2 position in a hot four-cornered contest, involving the two Texans, Cecil Smith and Rube Williams, as well as another Californian, Elmer Boesche, Jr. There had been no speculation about the remaining three positions, which mark the inclusion of a Californian, Pedley, for the first time.

Capt. Hitchcock, ace of the defending forces, nevertheless specifically reserved the right to make any changes he considers necessary after the first match. Except as a result of the injury or incapacitation of a player, no substitutions can be made once a team takes the field.

Roger Bernard Wins Over Bat Battalino

DETROIT, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Roger Bernard, of Flint, Mich., won a 10-round decision over Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., featherweight champion of the world, in a non-title bout here last night. Bernard weighed 127½; Battalino, 129½.

Babe Ruth's All-America Team in Sunday's Issue

Don't miss Babe Ruth's annual all-America baseball team, a feature of tomorrow's issue of the Pittsburgh Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

The Babe and a committee of sports writers had a difficult time weeding out the players for certain positions, but they finally came up with a team that is a pip.

Look it over and read what Babe says about why the various stars were named for the honor roll.

In tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph, also, appears the second article of Jess Carver's Football Roundup series, detailing the prospects of Geneva College on the gridiron this fall.

RICH RACING EVENTS TODAY

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Like a calm before a storm, the racing cards at Belmont Park and Lincoln Fields were made up of claiming events and small allowances purses yesterday. Both tracks have rich stakes events scheduled for today, Belmont Park featuring the Lawrence realization with Gallant Fox, and Lincoln Fields the $25,000 Lincoln Handicap.

Marlowe Sisters Win Net Crown

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The Marlowe sisters, Helen and Mercedes, of Los Angeles, Cal., won the national junior girls' tennis double championship at the Philadelphia Cricket Club yesterday.

In capturing the crown they upset the first seeded doubles team, Dorothy Workman and Carolyn Babcock, also of Los Angeles, in straight sets, 7-5, 6-2.

HEENEY HOPES FOR KAYO

Tom Heeney, the Australian heavyweight, erstwhile challenger for the world title, who meets George Panka in the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Moonday night, will arrive in town either late tonight or early tomorrow morning.

Word comes from Charley Harvey, manager of the Anzac, that Tom is in fine shape and hopes to score a knockout victory over Panka, which, incidentally, would be the first of the latter's career.

Cecil Mallory has been matched with Butch Jacobs for one of the bouts on the amateur card under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars at the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. arena, North Side, next Tuesday night. Howard Turner and Frank Kladdick are paired for another bout.

Allen Beatty, Negro welterweight, of McKeesport, and Jimmy McGraw, of Wheeling, have been matched for the eight-round semi-final to the Tom Malco-Billy Rose bout opening the indoor season at McKeesport next Thursday night.

U. S. ENGINEERS WIN SHOOT

CAMP PERRY, O., Sept. 6.—(AP.)—The championship regimental team match, one of the most important events in the National Rifle Association's program of rifle matches here, was won yesterday by the United States Engineers, who scored 555 out of a possible 600.

The United States Infantry team, from Fort Benning, Georgia, was second with 551 and Arizona National Guard third, with 550.

The match was fired at 200 and 600 yards, with 20 shots a man for record.

The Pasadena Rifle and Revolver Club, of Pasadena, Cal., won the Civilian Inter-Club Rifle team match with a score of 370 out of a possible 400.

The United States Marines won the A. E. F. Rumanian Trophy match and the enlisted men's team match. In the first match they scored 554 out of a possible 600, and in the enlisted men's team match they took 554 out of a possible 600.

The national small bore championship match, which was an aggregate of several events, was won by Vere Hamer, of Prighar, Ia., with 1,073.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The national amateur soccer cup committee, as announced by William T. Angus, of Cleveland, vice president of the National Soccer Association, includes Angus, chairman; James McKinley, St. Rochester, N. Y.; Sam Morris, New Bedford, Mass., and William J. Kerr, Pittsburgh.

Favorites to cop the National League flag, a feat which would give the honors twice in succession, the Cubs will say their season's farewell to Forbes Field patrons this afternoon in a single contest against our Pirates.

Paul Waner's thrilling homer in the ninth with one out gave the Buccos an 8-to-7 triumph over the Bears yesterday. The Freebooters staged a remarkable fight to gain their objective. They entered the seventh with a three-run shortage, but forced a deadlock ere the eighth was completed. Then came Brother Paul's dazzling four-sacker to win the game.

PLAY INTENSE

The intensity of the play between the two clubs during the season is evidenced in the even number of victories and defeats charged to each club in the 20 fights staged. Each team has won 10 games.

Remy Kremer, ace of the Pirate staff, is due to face the Bruins this afternoon. Either Charley Root or Fred Blake is expected to twirl for the invaders. Al Bool will be behind the bat for the Buccos. Farmer Al had to relieve Rolly Hemsley yesterday, the coal miner being afflicted with bad hands. Bool's hitting helped the Pirates in no small way after he moved into action.

The brilliant series will be concluded tomorrow in Chicago. The two teams are slated to move to Wrigley Field after today's contest. The game in Chicago will be the last meeting of the two teams this season.

WHIRLWIND FINISH

Brother Paul's homer that decided yesterday's game provided a whirlwind finish for fight put up by the Buccos yesterday in making it two out of three over the Cubs. Brother Lloyd had been retired when Paul stepped to the barrier. Bob Osborn was the impending victim. Bob tried to harass the little slugger with a pitch on the inside corner of the plate and Paul hit a ferocious liner over George Kelly's head.

The fleet Cuyler was off in a flash in the general direction of the ball. But as fast as was Kiki, the drive was immeasurably faster and the last low lunge of the great outfielder fell a few inches short of snagging the mad rocket which caromed off the concrete with much force.

Cuyler stopped his momentum

Nick Altrock Says:

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—Your Uncle Nick will take the day off from writing classical essays on the big league races today to pay a little tribute to Joe Hauser, of the Baltimore Orioles. Joe has knocked out so many home runs this season he makes Babe Ruth look like the road company of "Way Down East." Although Baltimore is a neighboring town of Washington, I have never seen Joe Hauser play, because it is so easy to have your gin delivered at home. But anyone who can swing a bat and make the horsehide travel farther than the Bambino is no flash in the dustpan, and if I don't see Joe in the big league next year it will be because he has been snapped up by the National League.

TWO SOCCER TILTS TODAY

Two soccer games will be played locally this afternoon, both of them being independent affairs. At Swissvale, the Union Switch and Signal team will hook up with Clan Douglas, and the season's first meeting between these old rivals should attract a large crowd.

The other game will find two new teams swinging into action: the Sons of St. George eleven, of Wilkinsburg, will meet Mesta Machine at the Homestead athletic grounds.

PITT GRIDDERS SCRIMMAGE; GET REST TODAY

SCRUBS HAND VARSITY REAL FIGHT

CAMP HAMILTON WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 6.—Sore and stiff after three days of a row of scrimmage the Pitt Panthers leaped for the shore [illegible] this afternoon's scrimmage [illegible] quite ready to quit their [illegible] for a day or two.

After practice the boys were permitted to go into the business district of Windber and partake of ice cream sodas to their heart's content. Eddie Baker will [illegible] hold his title of champion ice cream assimilator against all comers, but will probably [illegible] opposition from Fry and Hood and Joe Williams, who are said to be contenders.

SCRUBS DO WELL

The scrimmage was marked by the fine work of the scrubs during the first few minutes of play. The varsity was off color, and the scrubs, realizing this, decided to get the jump on their opponents. The scrub backfield men kept up [illegible] session appeared to be wasted.

The plays seemed to possess the unhappy faculty of getting [illegible] before they hit the line of scrimmage. This might be due to the fact that some scrubs broke through the line and blocked traffic before the linemen and the backs could get themselves [illegible].

Sutherland began to express his displeasure before the scrimmage had progressed very far, and fell in reinforcements frequently. In several cases these newcomers made a better impression than their starting brothers.

Warren Heller, a snake-hipped sophomore, replaced Whitey Walinchus and while he displayed a marked ability for fumbling the ball managed to tear off a couple of nice dashes through the tackles. Josh Williams, running from the other halfback was his usual self, running hard but seldom making any useless attempt to gain a few inches.

WAGNER LOOKS GOOD

Bucky Wagner, one of the boys who has spent his pocket money for resin during several seasons to keep from falling off the bench, was injected into the fullback role and gave the few spectators an eyeful. He was probably the most consistent gainer on the field. Bucky for the time being has been shifted from quarterback to fullback.

The varsity lineup at the start of the session found MacMurdo and Collins at the ends, Quatse and Tully at the tackles, Hart Morris and Mike Milligan at the guards, Daugherty at center, Baker at quarter, Walinchus and Heller at the halfbacks and Hood at fullback.

Paul Reider, replacing Williams, showed plenty of speed in eluding the reserve ends, and getting back through the defensive backs. It begins to look as though Jock Sutherland has four mighty smooth backs to use in Walinchus, Williams, Heller and Reider.

TECH PLAYERS WORK

Carnegie Tech's gridders were turned loose at each other's throats in a scrimmage yesterday afternoon. It was the opportunity many of the players had awaited, and the coaches let them go to it for an hour and a half. With the younger men scenting their first chance to do something spectacular, and the veterans unwilling to take a back seat, play was extremely rugged.

At the start one team lined up with Rosenzweig and L. Flanagan at the ends, Stauffer and Fletcher at the tackles, Dreshar and Bample at the guards, Goldberg at quarterback, Kavel and Eyth at the halfbacks and Morbito at fullback. The opposing aggregation was composed of Potts and Croissant at the ends, Hershberger and Schnupp at the tackles, Pouncey and Burns at the guards, Jones at center, McCurdy at quarterback, T. Flanagan and Graveno at the halfback posts and Karcis at fullback.

The morning session today will not be severe and a half holiday will be granted the hard-working squad this afternoon.

Graduate Manager Clarence Overend and Coach Bob Waddell left last night for New York, where they will attend the joint meeting of athletic directors, graduate managers and head coaches and the Eastern Association for the Selection of Football Officials.

BEARCATS SCRIMMAGE

LATROBE, Pa., Sept. 6.—The St. Vincent's College Bearcats got their first taste of Notre Dame football yesterday afternoon when Coaches Crowe and Edwards decided to call scrimmage a day ahead of schedule. After a few preliminary exercises, Coaches Crowe and Edwards gave the squad a number of practice plays and sent two of the new teams into scrimmage. It was the first chance that either of the coaches had to tell the real worth of the aspiring candidates for the Bearcat eleven.

Capt. Andrew Evancho, halfback, was clipped in the hip and will be out for a few days. A number of other minor casualties were reported after the scrimmage. Crowe intends to run the squad through another scrimmage this morning and also in the afternoon.

as quickly as possible, but by the time he retraced his footsteps and reached the ball, Paul was well on his way to third. Even the fast throws to the plate failed to stop the Pirate star, who shot past Leo Hartnett with a little distance to spare.

TRAYNOR DOUBLES

Pat Malone carried a six-run lead into the seventh, but in this frame, Suhr and Bool inserted doubles and later Paul Waner came through with a triple. Paul scoring, too, when Hornsby muffed the relayed rocket.

Capt. Traynor opened the eighth with a double and Comorosky singled to score Pie. The wallop took Altoona Pat out of action. Osborn rushing to the scene. Dick Bartell had a fine greeting for the newcomer. Dick rifled a triple to left center, and Dick rode over behind Commy on Suhr's sacrifice fly. That run tied up the scrap.

Ervin Brame worked the entire game for the Buccos. Neither Brame nor Malone was given big-league support. Hartnett connected for his thirty-second homer of the season with one on in the fourth.

prices were from 50 cents to $4 and the show was a sell-out. It's the same in London at times. Dave Shade is making a trip to that city to meet Len Harvey, English middleweight champion, in Albert Hall, London, on September 29 and the top price will be $16. Imagine any promoter's trying to get away with a $16 top for a Shade-Harvey match in this country, or with a $25 top for a bantamweight show, even with a championship at stake.

Jim Ashton

TO ANYBODY NOT thoroughly schooled in the finer points of the game, all polo players look pretty much alike. That is, the average citizen can't see a wide enough difference between any two of the international performers to figure wherein it would be possible for polo to have individual stars equally as outstanding in their line as the top-notchers in other sports, like Babe Ruth in baseball, for instance. But Jim Ashton, captain of the team of four Ashton brothers, who came to America from Australia recently and after playing several matches sold their 25 ponies at auction for $77,600, says polo has its super-greats just as well as any other game. "Hitchcock, Guest and Pedley, of the American team in the international championship match at Meadow Brook, are to my mind just as outstanding in polo as any player in any other branch of sport," Ashton declares. "I have heard it said that because of the smaller number of men competing in polo the outstanding stars are not perhaps so good as, say, your Babe Ruth in baseball or your Bobby Jones in golf. But from what I have seen here, these three, and Hitchcock, in particular, are as skillful in their sport as any man could be in any game." Whether it is because of the rare ability of these players, as pointed out by Ashton, or the international importance of the match opening this afternoon, the fact remains that polo in this case has the drawing power of any major sport. It is estimated that 40,000 persons will attend each of the games, with the admission and seat prices $5.50, $7.50, $10 and $13.75.

BASEBALL HAS LOST none of its uncertainty. With the Cubs engaged in a tough series with the Pirates, the Giants figured to gain in the fight for first place by picking up ground meanwhile in a supposedly soft string of games with the Braves. But while the Bruins were dropping two out of three games to the Bucs in the last three days, the McGrawites were tossed for three in a row by the lowly Bostonese after winning the first game of the set. You never can tell.

As a result of their failure to seize a golden opportunity to crawl up on the leaders, the Giants have dropped to third place and new foemen, the Cardinals, are now threatening to give the Bruins a fight for the pennant. They may yet make trouble for the leaders, unless the Reds give them a setback today and tomorrow as they gave the Cubs early this week. The figures still favor Chicago, however. To beat out the McCarthys, the Cards will have to win six games more in their remaining 22 contests than the Bruins win in their remaining 20 events. Or if the Cubs only break even in the 20 games they have yet to play, the Redbirds will be required to win 16 of their remaining 22 games, or .727 ball, to finish ahead of them.

Exchanging blows at close quarters Tommy Freeman and Young Jack Thompson are shown in one of the hectic moments of their 15-round fight at Cleveland last night, in which Thompson defeated Freeman, but was dethroned as welterweight champion when Referee Patsy Haley gave the verdict against him. Thompson was credited with winning 10 of the 15 rounds.

NATIONAL NET CHAMPIONSHIP OPENS

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP.)—Thirty-one first round matches start the ball rolling in the national men's singles tennis championships at the West Side Tennis Club today.

Although many of the 95 entries have drawn first round byes and do not compete until Monday, both Big Bill Tilden, favored to win the title for the eighth time, and Jean Borotra, formidable French contender, swing into action the first day.

Tilden is matched against C. Lincoln Halberstadt of New York at 3:30 p. m. eastern standard time, an hour after Borotra's match with Berkeley Bell, fighting first 10 player from Austin, Tex.

Among the young players conceded chances to go far are Wilmer Allison, George Lott, Sidney Wood, Cliff Sutter, Gregory Mangin, John Van Ryn, Ellsworth Vines and Frank Shields.

BIG TENNIS PROGRAM

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Tennis holds sway in the Western Pennsylvania sport realm this afternoon. Barring bad weather—and to crimp these activities it'll have to be really bad, indeed—three outstanding net events signalize the district card—the opening of the revival of the Allegheny County championships at the Carnegie Library Club, Duquesne, Pa.; the Pittsburgh-Greensburg inter-city return contest at the Greensburg Country Club, and the Beaver County men's singles finale, in which Howdy Campbell and Johnny Hecker will clash on their home lot at the College Hill Tennis Club, Beaver Falls.

Chairman Sam Keller, of the Allegheny County event last evening released an entry list of 52 competitors in man-to-man bouting. We asseverate that this is not only a remarkable indication of the tremendous appeal that the racquet pastime is exerting locally this summer, but that it is also a glowing tribute to the industry of Keller and his Librarian colleagues in bringing back to life and vigor a tournament long since defunct.

Today's Allegheny County tilting will get under way at 1 o'clock. The two fine courts of the Duquesne Library will be the center of action, but for first and second round tussles the four excellent rectangles at Clairton and one good court at the Homestead Library will be pressed into service.

Fight Results

At Cleveland—Tommy Freeman defeated Young Jack Thompson, 15 rounds (world welterweight championship). Tony Herrera knocked out (technical) Gaston Charles, two rounds. Sam Weiss defeated Rudy Rosales, eight rounds. Henry Andrews defeated Sam Bryant, six rounds. Mickey Cohen defeated Luis Carpentier, six rounds. Jimmy Hogan defeated Jimmy Smith, four rounds. Tony Shea defeated Ray Edwards, four rounds.

At Detroit—Roger Bernard defeated Bat Battaglia, 10 rounds.

At Newark, N. J.—Joe Santa knocked out Jack Shaw, 2 rounds. Al Mason defeated Al Capone, 8 rounds. Joe Monreon defeated Murray Rhone, 10 rounds.

At Bayonne, N. J.—Al Ridgway knocked out Frankie La Fay, 4 rounds.

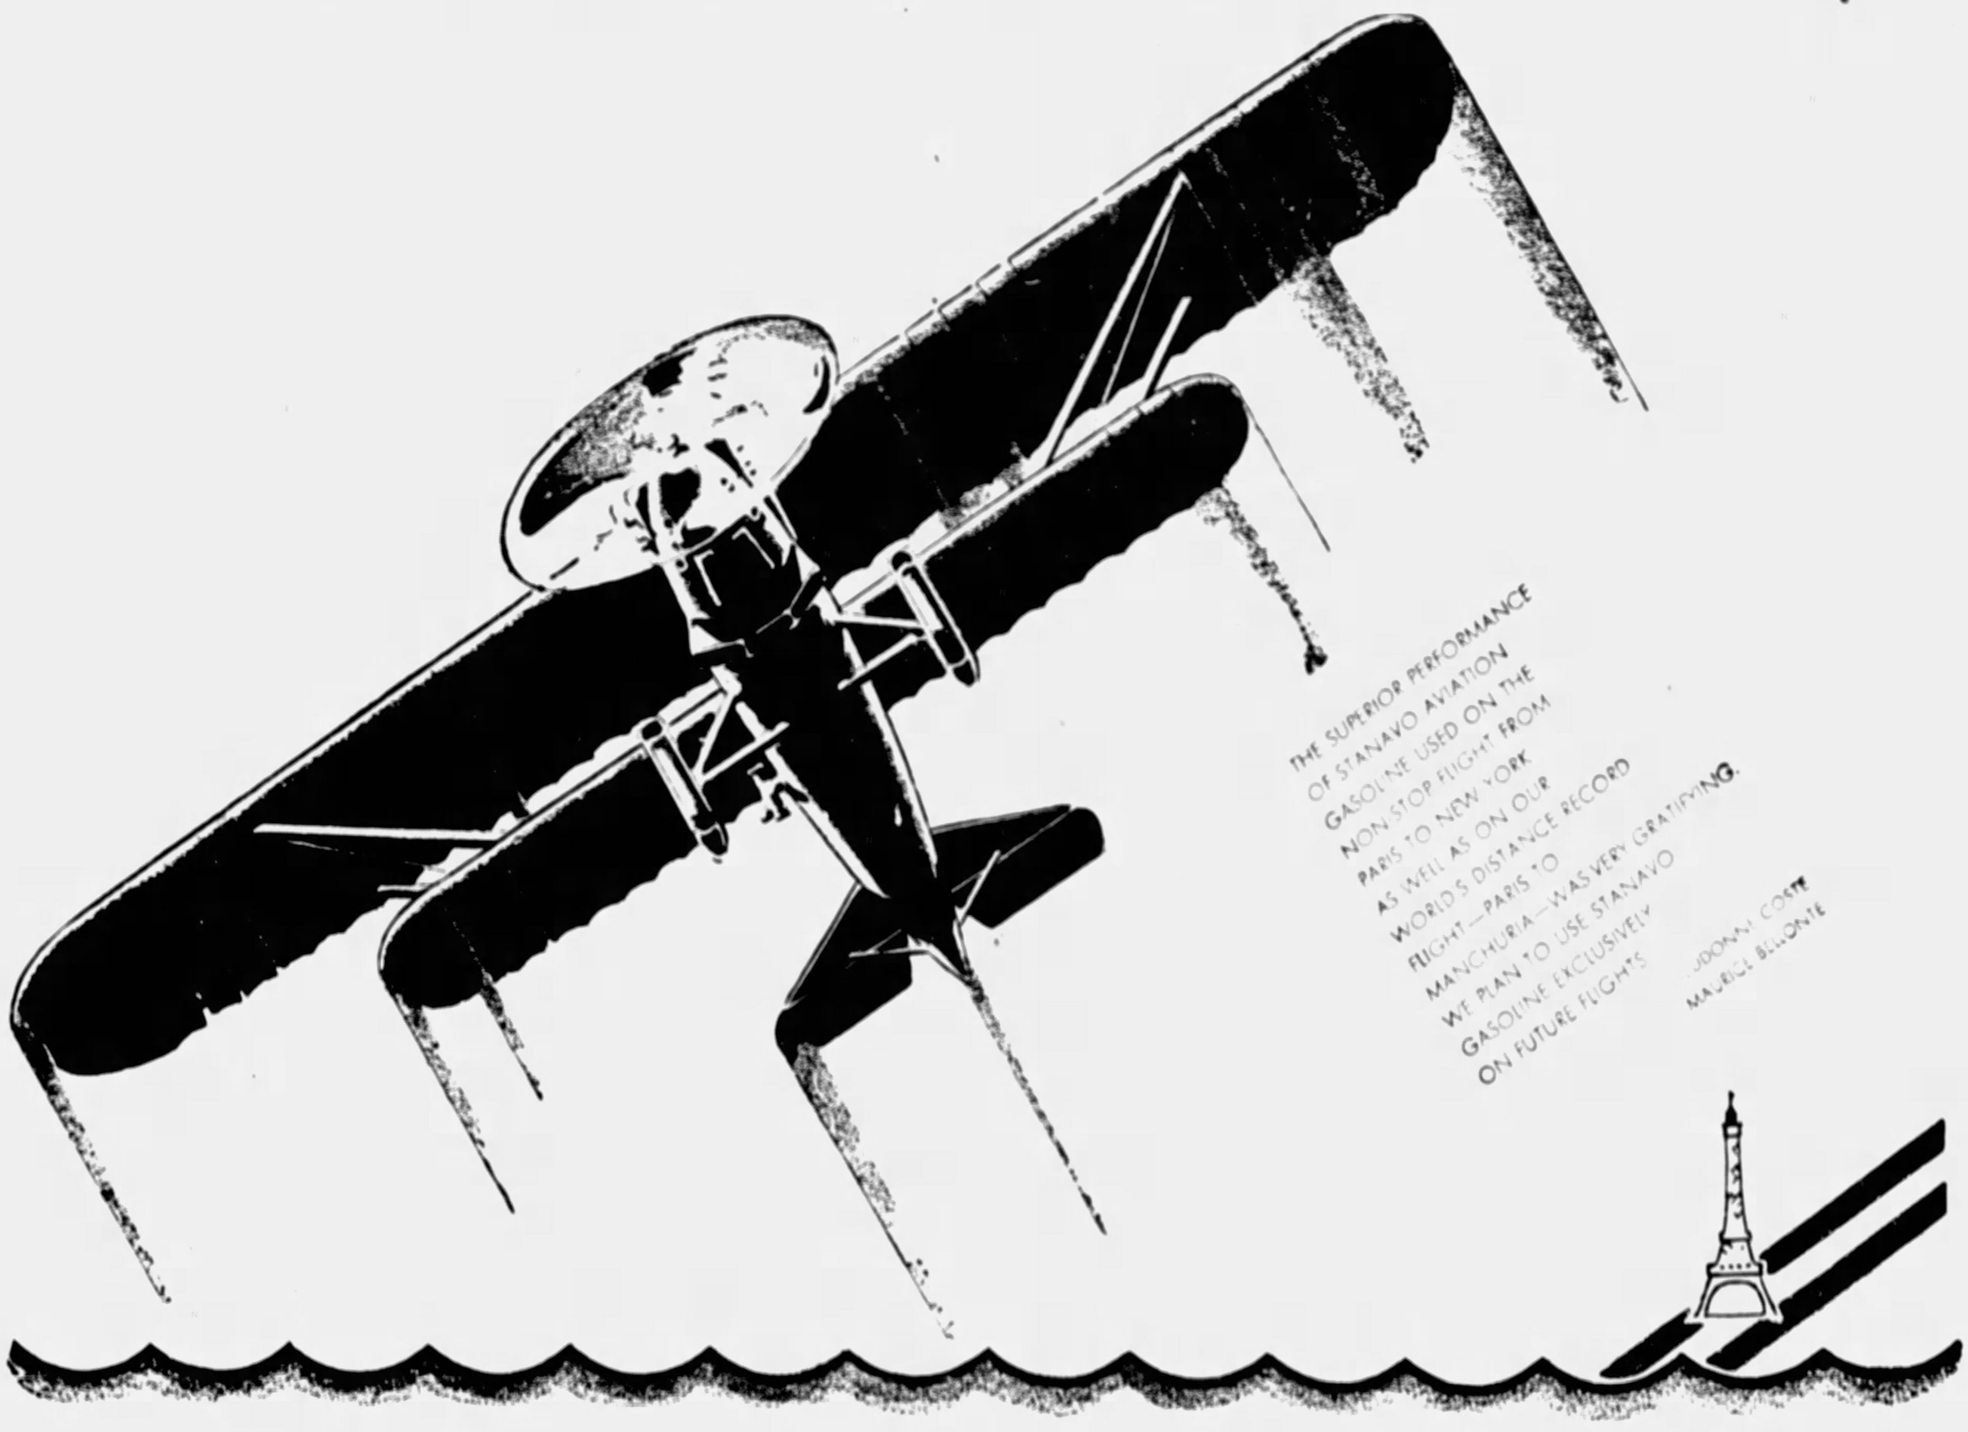
COSTE AND BELLONTE CROSS ON STANAVO

"STANDARD'S" FAMOUS AVIATION GASOLINE



"America—We are Here!" That was the message of the humming Hispano motor as the "Question Mark" gracefully landed on Curtiss field at twilight Tuesday. ☆ Coste and Bellonte did it—the feat which no one had ever before accomplished—a non-stop flight from Paris to New York! Undaunted courage, a thorough knowledge of navigation, unsurpassed skill in airmanship—these—plus an unfaltering motor—were the qualities which brought them through. ☆ It was natural that Coste—noted for his extreme care in preparing for all of his many air ventures—should use Stanavo Aviation Gasoline for this flight as he did in setting the world's distance record (Paris to Manchuria). ☆ This successful flight of the "Question Mark" is but another practical demonstration of the "GOOD LUCK" that is built into "Standard" products. People who know motors and recognize real performance whether it be in an airplane engine or in an automobile rely on "Standard." They know that every "Standard" product is made according to the rigid specifications set up by the engineering and technical staff of the world's greatest oil company. ☆ ☆ ☆

SOLUTION TO

The Body in the Basket

BY ARTHUR HOERL

When Robin Dale entered the apartment of Dick Wythe there was a low undertone of conversation. Capt. Blake and Jardin near the door were conversing. At the window overlooking the rear court were Ernest and Grace Saunders. Cochrane, the driver, was ill at ease, shifting his feet nervously. Norris with a tragic look on his features and Jackson as usual quite composed, were seated close together. Murdoch and Carroll were conversing in apparent indifference.

Dale spoke to Capt. Blake first and asked permission to put a few questions to certain of those gathered in the room. Permission was, of course, given.

"I'd like to ask Mr. Cochrane how long he was away from his truck while it was parked in the alley outside Deauville Court."

"About 30 minutes. I had to call for a lot of bundles, being it was Monday."

"And now, Mr. Jackson—the night before the murder you sort of stood guard outside Mr. Wythe's apartment, there being a lady inside. Did you see the lady?"

Capt. Blake" said Dale turning to the police officer, "I believe you can place Thomas Jackson under arrest for the murder of Richard Wythe."

"It's a lie—I didn't do it!"

"I'm sorry, Jackson, that it had to be your daughter who gave us the final proof," Dale went on. He was earnestly sorry for the old man. "Remember, you told us that she did not know where you were working." Well, I sent her a note today asking her to come to Mr. Wythe's apartment, giving no address or any further information. She's outside now, in the lobby. She knew where the apartment was because she was the lady inside the apartment the night before the murder. It was a tragic thing that you should have been outside keeping guard for that man. The following morning you suddenly resigned and that night your opportunity for revenge came. The money you took from the body you were going to use to get away."

"Don't tell Stella—please don't let her know. It would kill her."

"There seems no way out of that, Mr. Jackson—but I feel that that is the only chance there'll be for you to plead that the crime was justifiable."

Dale then explained the crime being committed exactly as he had considered the action—Jackson waiting for him after Wythe left the Saunders apartment, wreaking his vengeance on the gambler and then after hiding the body that night, placing it in the basket the next day while the driver was collecting the bundles of laundry.

"But what about Wythe's talking to the nightman at 5 o'clock, if you say he never came back into his apartment after leaving it shortly after 2?"

"I'm sure Norris can explain that riddle for you, Capt. Blake."

This conversation took place in one corner of the room, after Jardin had placed Jackson under arrest, the mild-mannered old man making no further denial of his guilt.

"Norris?"

Yes, he came back and found the side entrance easily enough. In the excitement Jackson undoubtedly left it open. Norris came back to get the money. Of course, he did not find it, as evidenced when he was arrested the following day. In his search of the apartment he knocked something over and feigned a sleepy voice to more easily fool the night man when he came to the door. I'm sure Norris will confirm that."

Norris did later. And, be it said for the police, they took care of Stella Jackson all during the terrible days of her father's trial for the murder of Richard Wythe. The result of that trial is, of course, a matter of record and common knowledge.

Robin Dale had his New Year's Eve jamboree, but it was not as jovial as he had looked for it to be. The vision of the poor girl, the frail lady with the large, luminous eyes, kept obtruding itself during the festivities.

Copyright, 1930, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The officer when he was released had been able to tell them nothing. He had been hit on the head by someone he had not seen. Whoever it was had come to the waters edge behind the screen of scrubs that covered the dunes.

A number of gas masks had been sent for and would arrive the following morning. Mrs. Boyleston, now nominal head of the estate, had been asked for permission to blow up the wreck the next day. When she hesitated about it, Chief Wingate gruffly informed her that he would get an order to do so if it was necessary. At that she readily agreed.

Though they had tried, there was no way of figuring exactly where the tunnel led. There may have been other turns and twists in it. No effort had been made to check up on the afternoon actions of members of the Boyleston household. But, at Dale's suggestion, five police officers were in hiding watching the place to prevent an escape, now that the murderer knew they were close on his trail.

They were seated in the gloom when Stephanie Rolfe came out of the house.

"Have you seen Oliver, Mr. Dale?" she asked. He promised to have dinner here tonight and it's eight now."

Dale jumped to his feet as the electric shock of truth came to him.

"Heaven help me! Chief! The ghost comes again tonight, unless we're in time to stop another murder! Quick!" They ran off into the darkness. Chief Wingate shouting frenziedly for his men to follow.

Where were they running? Whom were they trying to save? What gave Robin Dale the final clue to the mystery? Who was guilty? What was the motive for the crimes? What was Scrimley's Ghost? Read the solution in the Sun-Telegraph a week from today.

Cowboys Missing When Hollywood Sees Stampede

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 6. (AP)—Cowboy heroes of the movies were strangely absent when eight bellowing steers escaped from a wrecked motor truck and stampeded through the streets of the motion picture capital.

Pedestrians fled before the horde's charge. Street cars and automobiles were brought to a halt. Two brawny policemen finally corraled the steers in a garage.

Widow of Grant's Son Dies in Capital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6. (AP)—Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant, who as the daughter-in-law of President Grant once was a brilliant leader of the capital's society, died last night at the age of 76.

She had been confined to her home some years by ill health. Her serious condition recently brought to her bedside her children, Princess Michael Cantacuzek-Speransky and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant III.

Mrs. Grant, born Ida Honore, was the daughter of Henry Hamilton Honore, of Louisville and Chicago. Her husband, Maj. Gen. Frederick Dent Grant, was the eldest son of the late President. He was on the staff of Gen. Sheridan in Washington at the time of their marriage and later became American minister to Austria. He died in 1912.

Boy, 15, Hit by Ball In School Game, Dies

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP)—Fifteen-year-old Philip Labaghera, pitching for his schoolmates in a sandlot baseball game yesterday, was struck in the head by a batted ball and killed.

The ball struck him behind the ear as he turned to avoid it. His skull was fractured.

THIRD DISPUTED FIGHT

[illegible] WEISS BEATS ROSALES

[illegible] Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VI

[illegible] Miss Mary Mahoney [illegible] Meyers promoted.

FREEMAN IN TROUBLE

Thompson [illegible] flang of the gong [illegible] second [illegible] to end the battle. Standing [illegible] from Freeman after words [illegible] ffe to [illegible] sack [illegible] accurate [illegible] finally [illegible] a hard left hook [illegible] midring. He got [illegible] of six and managed [illegible] the storm until the be[illegible].

With this lead [illegible] bell Thompson then eased off for a couple of rounds which Freeman won. Tommy poured cautiously with his left throughout the third and in the fourth gained confidence and did some [illegible] Jack slipped down in the [illegible] but was up at once.

Thompson got back stride and rattled [illegible] rounds. Rather flag-[illegible] he amazed the ringsiders with [illegible] power behind his [illegible] sank home. He was the [illegible] shooter par excellence with Freeman getting few chances to [illegible] his own in the trading [illegible] The eighth found [illegible] Thompson blazing away. He fairly volleyed his punches with both fists, until he had Freeman [illegible] down to a walk and actually waiting to be hit by his [illegible] stalking opponent.

TOMMY RALLIES

Freeman staged a [illegible] ninth in which he [illegible] to win the honors.

The tenth was a [illegible] round climaxed by a right to the jaw that made Freeman sag at the knees as the bell rang.

Came the eleventh and Freeman's best showing of the bout. In it he did his only real sustained fighting but not quite after Thompson had started off to finish him and had weakened under fire as Freeman fought back in sheer desperation. As the fans stood up and made the welkin known, walking with those cheers, Thompson wilted and Freeman came on to outlast him and was backing Jack around the ring as the hectic session ended.

That was Freeman's last [illegible] ning round. Thompson went in front again in the [illegible] and remained there. The round consisted mainly of [illegible] in which Freeman mauled while Thompson hit sharply with both fists, used his uppercut [illegible] plentifully and wound up [illegible] a corking right flush on the [illegible].

FIGHTERS TIRE

The thirteenth was [illegible] with Thompson doing [illegible] the leading and drawing blood from Tommy's nose with a hard right to that spot.

In the fourteenth Freeman almost lost his mouthpiece again and had to stuff it back in place with his gloved fist as Thompson continued the aggressor.

Both were tired when they came up for the final round. They shook hands and Thompson went back to measuring his foe with lights to the jaw which soon [illegible] down. Freeman got in one good hook to the jaw, but during the remainder of the round he was on the receiving end.

POOR DECISION

Then the shock of Referee Haley's decision.

This was the second meeting between Thompson and Freeman. Last January at Detroit Freeman, scaling 152 pounds, won the decision over the man he [illegible] deservedly dethroned last night.

Tony Herrera, Mexican lightweight, of Chicago, was the hit of the preliminary card. Boxing in next to the last bout after the windup, he knocked out Gaston Charles, of France, in the second round. Referee Kilbane stopped the slaughter after Charles had been knocked down six times in this session. Charles also was on the floor three times in the first [illegible] place.

Gene Sarazen Cops Lannin Golf Trophy

SALISBURY PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 6.—(AP)—Scoring a 70 on the last round, Gene Sarazen, ace professional from Flushing, N. Y., yesterday won the $5,000 J. J. Lannin Memorial open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 287.

Runner up with 288 was Walter Kozak of Douglaston, N. Y., who shot rounds of 69 and 71 and held the lead until Sarazen, in the fourth round 70 pushed him into second place.

GRID RULES Interpretations

PLAY NO. 6

McDonald, of Boston College, charges through the Providence line and successfully blocks a punt which Callahan is about to get away. In doing this McDonald upsets Callahan and Providence appeals to the referee for a penalty for knocking down the kicker.

What is the correct ruling?

ANSWER

The referee rules that no penalty is in order, as the defensive player upset the kicker in a successfully executed play. Had Callahan succeeded in getting off his kick and then McDonald have upset him, the ruling would have been different. Running into the kicker calls for five yards and for roughing the kicker 15 yards.

The seventh play of this series, which will take the fans through 24 plays such as may come up at any time during the season will be published next Monday. A better understanding of the great autumn sport will be gained by following this series closely.)

DAILY TRUE STORY

In the dim narrow passage, Anna paused just outside of Fred's dressing room door. She caught the excited tones of Hindel's voice, but it was Fred's reply that arrested her attention.

"That's final. I won't sign, not under the conditions you name, not for one hundred thousand a week." Fred's tone was cool and level.

Who was Hindel to [illegible] what Fred should do? [illegible]

Anna, a [illegible] tulle [illegible] aside [illegible] The [illegible] wanted [illegible] that [illegible] dressing [illegible] They [illegible] ing a [illegible] pug [illegible] when [illegible] caused [illegible]

"Later, Fred [illegible] You [illegible] over a [illegible] made [illegible] offering [illegible] tract [illegible] of [illegible]

[illegible] her [illegible] beaks [illegible] So [illegible] there [illegible] Kolar [illegible] fact, [illegible] nerves. [illegible] situation [illegible] all [illegible] were [illegible] Only [illegible] best [illegible] hotels. [illegible] where [illegible] ing [illegible] lantic [illegible] cap of [illegible] artists [illegible]

It was the climax [illegible] had kept [illegible] years. She was glad that she had refused last week [illegible] the dozen [illegible] to marry Fred. It was [illegible] that she didn't love him. She was a [illegible]. It was in her blood with Fred. It was a choice between love and her career. Then there was Fred, he needed her.

Spirit Broken

To think of this moment, the first thrill of success coming to her there, alone in that dusky passage. She wanted to [illegible] and catch Fred in her arms, even to cry on his shoulder. There were tears of [illegible] eyes now, and she let them fall. She knew it was [illegible] anything after [illegible] years of sacrifice and struggle, to suddenly have a three year contract on the Koran circuit offered to you was [illegible].

Fred's voice startled her.

"Well that goes what I said about Anna. Either she goes with me or I don't go. She's every bit as good as Marlow."

What was Fred saying? Something about not accepting. Then after all—then Hindel's voice cut in.

"Now listen here, Fred. Anna's about done for. You understand. She's been at this thing for years, lately she's beginning to slow down. Koran just won't have her. That's all there is to it, take it or leave it. She kills your act. With Marlow in her place you could pull down the biggest salary on the Koran circuit." Hindel paused.

"Anna wouldn't stand in your way in a thing like this, she's a good sport, you ask her advice," Hindel argued.

Anna stood dazed, white to the lips. Hindel's words had driven home with a deadly sureness that struck her gallant spirit down with a swift blow.

"You're dead right, Hindel," Fred was saying.

In Trance

"She is a good sport, she always has been and that's why I won't drag her down [illegible] sion. But she doesn't [illegible] she knew she was holding me back. There was a pause. Fred lowered his voice.

Anna [illegible] pressed close against the wall.

"That's [illegible] I know you would, but I won't give her a chance. There [illegible] money enough in the world to [illegible] me to do what you ask. Why this act is Anna's life. She slaved and worked to get [illegible] an even break. Denied herself everything but the bare necessities of life to make me what I am. Ever since I was a little shaver, she's been mother and father and sister, all rolled into one. I've come first in her life always. God man, you couldn't expect me to do a thing like that to her."

"Ah, you make me sick, all this sentimental bunk. Pull out of it, kid. Koran don't want your answer until tomorrow. Think it over."

The sound of Hindel's voice drew nearer.

Blindly, Anna felt her way along the passage back to her dressing room, the crimson frock trailing unnoticed against the dusty walls. She sat, wide eyes staring at her reflection in the mirror. Five minutes later Fred flung the door open.

Reach Anna. He cried [illegible]

Anna [illegible] he had never [illegible] handsome [illegible] standing there in his black [illegible] [illegible] he toyed with [illegible] his eyes dancing with [illegible] [illegible] She felt the thrill [illegible] girls when he gazes for the first time on his finished masterpiece. He was made for [illegible] everybody could see that. Hindel was right, she would [illegible] his way.

There was a slight droop [illegible] figure that ever the crimson frock couldn't hide [illegible] and [illegible] was a different Anna that would through the [illegible] first [illegible] have been [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Congressman Frisby Offers Unique Contest to Voters

In order to get the country into the right frame of mind, and thus put an end to pessimism for all time, Congressman Frisby has applied for permission to print the above picture in the Congressional Record and drop copies from mail planes throughout the parched farm belt. "The picture," explains Frisby, "shows two innocent, but never the less frightened girls, a large Shetland pony, and a fearless man. The idea of the contest is to guess which of the four is Congressman Frisby. The winner will probably receive a handsome prize. The contest is open to everyone except relatives of the two young ladies, the horse or your favorite congressman."

WHY PITTSBURGH IS GREAT
It Is a World Center for Plumbing Supplies

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1930

Pittsburgh's Problems

Some of Them Discussed Briefly

Director of Public Safety James M. Clark professes to be very indignant over the way in which clearing house lottery operators are preying on school children. The profession would be more impressive if made in connection with wholesale arrests of "numbers writers." The most amazing thing about this business is that while school children and thousands of other Pittsburghers have not the slightest difficulty in locating lottery agents and doing business with them, Clark's trained detectives are unable to find them.

Corrupt public officials or those tempted to be corrupt will find food for thought in the experience of Edmund B. Jermyn, former mayor of Scranton, Pennsylvania's third largest city, who went to jail this week to serve a year for slot machine racketeering. If Scranton seems too far away it may be edifying to reflect that John F. Brennan former chief of police in McKeesport, is "doing" 18 months in the Federal Penitentiary at Atlanta for rum racketeering. And then there is always the possibility that even if one does "beat" the racketeering charge embarrassing revelations concerning one's income will be made and lead to prosecution for evasion of federal income tax. Such revelations cost former Magistrate John W. Orie six months in jail this year.

Republican County Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong's call for a meeting of the committeemen and women of the Thirty-second Congressional District to choose a nominee for the National House of Representatives is a reminder that the seat in Congress made vacant by Stephen G. Porter's death is to be filled. The prestige of Pittsburgh will be enhanced by the selection of a congressman of the same high caliber as Mr. Porter; it will suffer if the district sends to Washington as his sucessor a man of the professional ward politician type. The whole city may well be interested, therefore, in what the district convention does.

Most of Pittsburgh's movie fans will no doubt agree with what Hal Roach, the producer, said at the banquet of local theater men the other night about the desirability of having more comedies on the screen. There was nothing more delightfully hilarious than the films in which Charley Chaplin, Fatty Arbuckle, Harold Lloyd and other comedians used to appear so frequently years ago. Now such pictures seem to be few and far between. The public would appreciate more of them. As Mr. Roach suggested, they do not have to be long films.

With the appointment of W. Heber Dithrich and William H. McNaugher to the bench, the Common Pleas Court of Allegheny County is now manned by comparatively young and vigorous judges. Partly because of the age and infirmities of some of the judges who have retired during the past year the Common Pleas docket has become seriously congested, while it has been almost continuously necessary to bring in judges from other counties to get the Quarter Sessions calendar cleared with reasonable promptness. We now have on the bench five veterans of the World War. With jurists so youthful the work of the courts should be speeded.

The Christy Park works of the National Tube Company, near McKeesport, with 540 employes, went through 1929 without a lost-time accident. The Allegheny Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad last year had the best year in respect to safety in its history, with only 19 reportable accidents, a decrease of 38 from the total number of the year before. These are samples of what our mills and railroads are doing to protect life and limb. Let us hope that the National Safety Congress, to be held in Pittsburgh September 29 to October 3, will make the general public as alive to the necessity of care as the manufacturers and railroads are, and so result in the prevention of automobile accidents.

There is satisfaction in the information given out by Dr. James W. Kellogg, director of the State Bureau of Foods and Chemistry, in regard to raisin bread. Calling attention to the discovery of loaves of so-called "raisin bread" that were deficient in raisins, Dr. Kellogg dryly remarks that "one raisin does not make a loaf of raisin bread any more than one robin makes a spring." There should be at least three ounces of raisins, Dr. Kellogg points out, for every pound of bread. It probably will be a revelation to most of us that Dr. Kellogg's bureau protects the public even in such matters as this.

*The action of the East Deer Township commis*sioners in directing traffic over a private road, as a detour, without asking permission of the owner of the property, is rather characteristic of what the county authorities are doing these days in connection with road building. Private property has to be taken, of course, when new highways are constructed; but courtesy and justice demand that permission be requested before the road gangs invade the property that is to be surveyed, and that personal notice be served on the owners when trees are to be cut and land is to be appropriated.

*Pittsburgh Chapter, Sons of the American Revo*lution, is doing a commendable thing in arranging for the observance of Constitution Day Wednesday, September 17, with appropriate exercises to precede and follow throughout that week. Churches and schools should be glad to co-operate, and it is none too soon to start work on the preparation of an attractive program. If unable to participate in or attend patriotic meetings, everyone should at least display the Flag on Constitution Day. To many it would be educational to read the Constitution.

Honest motorists will be gratified to learn that the Bureau of Motor Vehicles is making an earnest effort to assure that only honest and capable mechanics examine cars during the annual inspection period, which begins September 15. Commissioner Benjamin G. Eynon states that the bureau seeks to eliminate both those who are too lenient in their inspection and repairmen who use the inspection as a scheme to drum up trade through fraudulent representations. Autoists will appreciate protection from swindling repairmen, and, of course, will be glad to see cars driven off the roads that are unfit to be used.

Why Not Have a Parachute? -:-

By Nelson Harding

Why can't the parachute idea
Be well applied to industry,
And thus prevent sudden falls
That happen all to frequently?

When business depression brings
A grave employment scarcity,
Some kind of safety device
Would help in the emergency.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Front Porch Pets

Our gorilla man in Hamburg reports a slump in live animals. You can buy a used lion for $700 that has only been run 5,000 miles.

"Bugs" Baer

A good, durable hippo, with streamline torso costs twice that much. That's because you must feed the hippo, while a lion can pick up his own meals among and on the neighbors.

Of course, if the lion gets too tough you can give him a pair of glass eyes and he will think he is a rug.

A pair of long-stemmed giraffes cost $5,000 and can be had in the polka dotted fabric so fashionable this season. They make nice candelabra and they do not show soup stains.

Good riding elephants run around $3,000 apiece and come six in a set. Hamburg is the world center for wild animals of all kinds except tourists.

The wild animal trade seems to have slumped with the rest of the mergers.

Hamburg sells a lot of these saw-edged pets to American zoos and circuses. But business has been so bad that they are now going after the house-to-house trade.

You can even purchase a trained seal that will amuse the cook by juggling the dishes. After a few rehearsals the seal and the cook can move your kitchen into vaudeville.

A black panther is a beautiful thing as it lies on a doormat enscribed with the word welcome. What could be more comfortable and homelike than a porcupine on every chair?

Why try to teach the children natural history out of a box of animal crackers when you can buy a puma and get your facts directly from consumer to consumed?

There are plenty of hungry bargains over in Hamburg. And if you are thinking of building a home in the suburbs you might as well purchase a double-jointed leopard and have a good reason for staying in town at night.

These bargains are too good to be overlooked. When making your September budget for stockings and perfume leave an itemized space for fan-mounted crocodiles and snapping magootuxes.

Of course, the new tariff might throttle the retail lion and boa constrictor trade. The tariff is very high.

And while we do not know how high the tariff is on red-eyed panthers we do not know that it is not high enough.

THE STEPHENSON CENTENARY

By Archibald Henderson

In many respects, the railroad may be regarded as the most valuable and indispensable feature of contemporary life. The development of the airplane and automobile industries—or, as we should say, of the automotive industry—within recent decades has tended to lessen the earning power of railroads. While the growth of the motor truck and autobus industries has been immense and great passenger airliners are rapidly coming into more general use, it cannot be effectively denied that the locomotive, drawing a train of eight passenger or freight cars, or both in combination, continues to be the most powerful factor in land transportation.

The colossal railroad industry may be said to have had its true beginning a century ago. The triumph of George Stephenson with his famous Rocket came in the Rainhill trials, held by the Liverpool and Manchester Railway in October, 1829. Only recently Mr. Henry Ford ordered of the firm of Stephenson & Co., which still exists, a replica of George Stephenson's Rocket for his museum. The Rocket triumphed completely over its competitors and satisfactorily met all the requirements of the trial.

The Rocket not only won for Stephenson the prize of £500, but inaugurated the modern era in transportation.

George Stephenson, the uneducated son of a miner, was born in 1781, and followed the profession of mining pursued by his father. At the age of 17 he became a plugman, whose sole duty, and sometimes an exciting one, was to keep in order and keep running the engine which pumped water from the mine. Studying the mechanism, temperament and idiosyncrasies of this engine, he came in time to have a thorough knowledge of the principles of its construction, as well as the technic of its operation. Ambitious, of an inquiring mind, young Stephenson went to night school, learned to read and studied everything he could find in books about engines.

Near at hand were curious, primordial engines, which contained the germs of the modern locomotive. There was the curious coal-hauling locomotive built by John Blenkinsop, and the amusing Puffing Billy and Wylam Dilly of William Hedley, built in 1813, both used to haul coal from the mines. After being elevated to the responsible post of superintendent of all the engines used in the Killingworth Collaries, Stephenson constructed engines himself after the Blenkinsop model.

When the Stockton and Darlington Railroad, 38 miles long, was opened in 1825, Stephenson drove a small engine of his own construction which hauled 34 little cars, constituting a load of 90 tons. A horseman rode in front to clear the track, and sometimes he had to gallop, for the engine could spurt up to the amazing speed of 15 miles an hour!

Stephenson was a competent inventor and a business man of genuine ability. In the Rocket were embodied essential features of the modern locomotive, some of his own invention, some borrowed from others. But as Kaempffert says, "It was a distinctly new combination which produced a new result. And that is why George Stephenson goes down in the annals of technical achievement with the great—with Arkwright, Watt, Morse, Bell, Edison and Marconi."

LISTEN, WORLD -:-

By Elsie Robinson

I don't think much about happiness any more. I'm not even sure I want it. I'm after something else.

Remember how tremendously important happiness seemed to us when we were 16? If things didn't go just right—if we couldn't have what we wanted—what a row we made. And it wasn't just because we couldn't have the pink party dress or the new football. It was because that disappointment disturbed something inside us which we considered essential to a perfect life—an inner sense of warmth and contentment and bliss. Lives that didn't purr inside couldn't possibly be right—we thought. And anything that interfered with that purr was all wrong. One must be happy. Life wasn't worth living, unless one was.

That was the way we reasoned at 16. And we kept right on thinking that way at 26 . . . at 36. Thinking that happiness was the main thing in life. Testing life by its happiness. Dreading and despising unhappiness. Rebelling against it. And always waiting for the day when "everything would be all right" and we could, at last, be happy.

So the years went. Always we searched for happiness. Always it eluded us. Yet we searched on, for we honestly thought that happiness was the true goal of life. And there were few to dispute us. Almost without exception, our neighbors believed as we did. Now and then some philosopher muttered—"Happiness is an illusion"—but we laughed in return.

"Old sorehead!" we cried. "What's biting him? Just because he can't be happy he wants to crab the game for everyone."

Years passing. Lives passing. Searching for happiness. Staking everything they have on that search. Feeling that they've failed if they can't achieve that inner, blissful reaction, and of course, never achieving it save in snatches. Then going out at last, peeved at Fate, feeling that they've been two-timed.

Well, personally I've come to think that the search for happiness is the bunk. I don't believe that happiness is the great thing we were led to expect at sixteen. Nor that it's essential. Nor, in many cases even desirable. Nor ever the goal of a real life.

I believe there's something greater in life than happiness? and that's GROWTH. To go on . . . learning about life . . . learning about oneself . . . taking risks . . reaching . . . striving . . . suffering . . . putting off old selves, taking on new ones . . . regardless of danger or discomfort or loss or pain . . . LIVING, no matter what it costs—

"But that's just another kind of happiness," you say.

No, it isn't. It's an entirely different thing. Happiness means a certain definite reaction. Whether that reaction comes from owning a lollipop or a racing yacht—whether it's six year old or 60 year old happiness—the reaction is always the same. A sort of inner purr. AND I DON'T BELIEVE THAT AN INNER PURR IS NECESSARY FOR GREAT OR SUCCESSFUL LIVING.

I think the life that burns and weeps and curses and shudders may be much more worth while than the life that purrs—as long as these things contribute to growth. I think a broken heart may be a much better bargain than a blissful one.

And, indeed, I know of no great heart that wasn't broken . . . nor of any important life that didn't burn and weep and curse and shudder.

Christ on the cross . . . Socrates, drinking the hemlock . . . Joan, burning at the stake . . . Lincoln, facing the hate and ridicule of a nation . . . didn't purr. They weren't happy. They didn't expect happiness. They desired something much greater . . . life more abundant . . . that freedom of the soul which comes through the travail of death and birth—

So, at last, I've come to the point where I don't fuss about happiness. I no longer wonder if I'm happy or get mad if I'm not. All I ask now is that LIFE SHALL GIVE ME THE WORKS.

Isn't It So?

A warm discussion often results in a decided coolness.

Divorce is all that prevents marriage from being a failure.

It's a long street that has no parking place.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

We must note that this sort of thing does not happen in animals, except in very rare exceptional cases. Plants have more varied methods of evolutionary progress than animals, corresponding with their more various methods of reproduction. But these strange polyploids share with gene-mutations their strikingly accidental nature.

Both turn up, apparently by chance. Both are sporadic happenings, and yet they provide the raw material for evolutionary progress. To the way in which steady, orderly improvement of the race results from these random variations we must now turn our attention.

H. G. Wells

BOOK IV. CHAPTER VIII.
SELECTION IN EVOLUTION.
SEC. 1. VINDICATION OF DARWINISM

It must be clear already to the reader that the broad propositions of Darwinism re-emerge from a scrutiny of the most exacting sort essentially unchanged. Charles Darwin propounded his view—which he applied at first only to animals and plants and extended later to man—that in general the evolution of species was due to the Natural Selection of Variations.

What has three-quarters of a century of subsequent criticism done to modify that view? We have now scrutinized all the main lines of research during that period upon the development of individual characters and the details of heredity, and our answer is, "Practically nothing."

Instead of "Variations" simply, we may prefer to write "Mutations" or "Variations of the Germplasm." We have already dealt with the questions of convulsive mutation and the improbability (but not the impossibility) of the Lamarckian factor playing any large part in the process.

We will deal with the Elan Vital group of ideas, which does not so much combat the fact of Natural Selection as ignore or subordinate it, in a subsequent chapter.

Every animal and every plant produces offspring in such numbers that many must die if the number of the species are not to increase in every generation. The elephant is the slowest breeder among animals; Darwin estimated that an average pair produces only six young in ninety years of reproductive life.

But even so, if all the young survived, a single original pair would in five hundred years become fifteen million. Most animals and plants produce their eggs and seeds by the hundreds or thousands, and yet their average numbers remain steady throughout the generations. This can only happen if out of all the offsprings produced by each couple, on the average only two survive to reproduce their kind again.

All the rest must die—it is a question of the simplest arithmetic.

The number which must normally die are vividly brought home to us when we see a species temporarily released from pressing on its means of subsistence, by being imported into a new country where it happens to thrive. In a few years it fills the whole area.

The Canadian water-weed was accidentally introduced into England in the middle of the last century. Within ten years it was clogging the waterways and holding up canal traffic all over the country.

The English sparrow is today as common and as much of a pest in America as it is in England; but it filled the United States to saturation point in the geologically negligible time of less than a century.

The struggle may act at any period of life; it affects every department of existence.

There is a struggle against the forces of nature, of the migrating bird to survive the gale, of the flower not to go under in the rain squall, of the reindeer not to be frozen in the Arctic winter. There is a constant struggle against disease and against parasites. There is a struggle for mates and breeding places in animals, a struggle for cross-fertilization in flowering plants.

The better equipped survive, the worse equipped die; that is no metaphor.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—The restaurant waiter, in popular thought, graces one of the lowliest callings. Yet many in New York give their services a patina of rare dignity. This is especially true of those employed at de luxe clubs, such as the Metropolitan, Lotus, Yacht, etc.

Many grow gray serving several generations and almost become a part of select Knickerbocker families. During the past year five waiters were remembered in wills of wealthy bon vivants. An oft told legend is the elder Morgan gave a Virginia farm to a waiter who served him well.

There are waiters who have "followings." Many refuse to be captains or even head waiters because they do not want to end such profitable intimacies. Men of means appreciate excellent service in the same degree as excellent food, and will pay for it.

The old Fifth Avenue Hotel had Terry, a kindly Irishman, who with consideration waited upon the great of that epoch. After the hotel closed, Terry was jobless, senescent and without funds. Today he lives in a Killarney cottage—a grateful gift from those he faithfully attended.

When the original Delmonico—and what became of that dazzling middle chandelier? — hung up shutters two servitors got annuities and tickets to native England from a man they showed attention. Lindy, one of Broadway's opulent restaurateurs, was established by patrons he served as waiter.

Diamond Jim Brady, gourmand extraordinary, had a list of aged waiters on pension at time of his passing. The number made independent by stock tips is enormous. No job offers more advantageous contacts with people of importance than waiting in high-class cafes.

Jack Dunstan acquired a fortune operating celebrated Jack's. He began dealing 'em off the arm a few doors away. Billy, the Oysterman, I believe, began in the same fashion. Records show head waiters remain head waiters, but a waiter does not always remain a waiter.

* * *

I speared this in the fashion twittery of a theater program and it clears up everything: "It is a mooted question whether the opera hat or the orthodox silk topper is preferable for wear with dinner jacket." According to the dope, fashion countenances neither. Elongated hat and abbreviated coat are obviously an anomaly. "That's tellin' 'em, kid. Good old Besunash.

* * *

And an East Fifty-first haberdashery advertises: "Smalls and shorts." Burlington arcade for underwear. There is no connection but it recalls that hilarious limning in the New Yorker of a candy salesman displaying a sample with: "Here's a novelty—an all day sucker, just lousey with nuts."

* * *

Paul Frawley, a prettier-than-all-get-out juvenile, was once a freckle-faced kid in Burlington, Ia., so homely little girls pressed hands over their faces and rushed by screaming.

* * *

Three hotels have tiny chapels where those who desire may retire for meditation, delightful sanctuaries in the hurrah, and usually filled. And—to tick'e Mr. Mencken, no doubt—a 600-room hotel recently removed Gideon Bibles from rooms. More than 200 patrons over night inquired why, and they were restored.

* * *

With push cart peddlers vanishing in the Ghetto, amusing tales of curb merchants will be heard no more. One concerns a peddler inquiring of his neighbor the state of business. Receiving no reply he made three similar efforts, and was finally rewarded with: "Does Macy tell Gimble?"

* * *

During absence from town — and to fill the void I presume—the Bronx Zoo added a baby yak and two aoudads. An aoudad suggests Louis Mann without a collar and is worth seeing, but I cannot do a headspin over a yak. Even grown up, it is just a buffalo to me.

Taunts R. T. E.: "You are the bird who predicted six years ago Broadway would have no night clubs in five years. I visited seven last night."

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

You may have an aged or afflicted relative who has a right to expect aid from you in money, attention or care.

You do not assist this person because it might interfere with your own pleasure and leisure time.

At times your conscience troubles you, but you put the thoughts aside.

You argue that you have your life to live and you intend to live it in a way to get the fullest enjoyment out of it.

Isn't this a selfish view?

Sometime you may be more or less dependent upon the thoughtfulness and helpfulness of others.

Naturally you will feel that you should go to your relatives rather than to strangers when you need anything.

Can you imagine your disappointment and the pain it would cause you if you found they were not enough interested in you or did not feel the responsibility of the relationship?

You know all this, but at the same time you are perhaps refusing to assist those whom you are in duty bound to help.

Why should you think that your whole obligation is canceled when you give only attention to those in your immediate family?
